In another fiscal development that fiscal experts said was as significant as Mr. Carey's budget announcement. State Comptroller Arthur Levith today reversed a long-standing policy and told the Governor that he would consider using state pension funds to buy bonds of the state construction agencies threatened with default. Mr. Levitt's surprise statement removed what fiscal aides had been saying was the major impediment to an eventual long-term rescue for the faltering agencies. [Page 39.]

Much of what Mr. Chou Tri said was confirmed by other refugees. Pich Vang Praseth, the 40-year-old unofficial president of the Aranyaprathet re-fugee camp, said that similar reports were being received in refugee centers up and down the Cambodian border. Western intelligence officials in Bang-kok said that they first began receiving definite information on the new migration more than a month ago and were still receiving it regularly.

Many refugees also agreed to talk about their experiences in Cambodia only on the condition that their names not be disclosed nor their photographs taken, fearing reprisals from nervous Thai refugee officials.

The Thai Government, officially, allows no access to refugees except for some international relief agency workers an diplomats. But on occasion some reporters have been able to slip into the refugee camps and talk with the Camboians, at a rate of several hundreds a week all along the frontier. Meaning is Unclear

There is still some question as to what these huge shifts in population mean in tr terms of the control the Communist Government has managed to the first year of its control of the country.

"There is no question they are becoming increasingly bet-ter organized," said one Western diplomat who speaks Khmer and spends much of his time on analysis of Cambo-dian affairs' "What we believe is happening is that local con-trol throughout the country that had been the rule during and immediately after the war is diminishing and national, centralized control is in creasing'

One-Weekers to European cities that let you take in a little of the country.

Even if you're only spending a week in Europe, it's nice if you can spend part of it outside the big cities, seeing some of the country.

So, on every one of our Pan Am's World One-Weekers to Europe

this winter, we've included a car for 3 days at each city (except Canary Islands and Florence). Our Fly/Drive vacations include a car for a full week with unlimited mileage.

London,$412 London Fly/Drive,$419 London Showtime, $422 Amsterdam,$507 Rome,$497 Vienna, $524 London & Paris, $485 London & Paris Showtime. $520 London & Amsterdam, $500 London & Canary Islands, $572 London & Torremolinos,$478 London & Palma, $489 Florence & Rome, $588 Rome & Paris, $556 Rome Fly/Drive,$488 Paris & Amsterdam, $514 Madrid & Rome, $549

In addition to the car, these One-Weeker prices include round trip half-day sightseeing tours in each city, continental breakfasts, and our dining discount program that lets you save up to 50%

on meals in London, Paris, Rome, Amsterdam and Madrid, when two people are dining together.

We'll also make sure you have a copy of Pan Am's "Real Guide to Europe & the Mediterranean," Pan Am's World Shopping Guide, and Berlitz language guides to French, Italian and Spanish, if you'll be traveling in those countries.

Of course, there'll also be extras given in each city, exclusive to the city itself. For example, in London you'll get nightclub membership cards and our "In London" shopping guide.

Two-Weekers, Too.

Maybe you have 2 weeks to spend... We have a great choice of Two-Weekers, too, with everything our One-Weekers come with. Including the car.

Most of our tours are available in 4 categories: Bargain Special, Quality, First Class and Deluxe. So whatever your finances, we should be able to accommodate you.

Ask your travel agent for Pan Am Brochure PAH 006.

And have him make your reservations on Pan Am. That way you'll actually see some of the country of the country you're going to.

All tours are based on round trip GIT economy air fare for groups of 10 or more on selected departure dates. We help you join a group. If a group is not formed, we try to arrange an alternate date. Tickets must be purchased at least 15 days in advance. Hotels and cars are based on 2 people sharing. U.S. departure tax is included. You pay only for gas and optional collision insurance when you select one of our Fly/Drive options. All of the other One-Weeker cars are provided at no additional cost to you other than gas, mileage, optional collision insurance and local taxes. Prices advertised are valid on certain departures from now through March 31, 1976. And may be lower on certain departures in January and February.

Getting you there with Flying Colors means a better choice of departure times, telephones answered in 20 seconds or less, fast ticketing. It means computerized routing of flights, for the best weather and smoothest ride. It means a memorable menu, on time arrivals, and careful luggage delivery. It means a fleet of modern jets with wide body interiors and fold down center seats in coach. And every jet carries the words ... "Flying Colors" ... The resolutions have been ac cepted by Jordan, Egypt and Syria, and also by Israel; and the United States has assured Israel that in its view they re main the "only basis" for ne-gotiations on the Mideast.

Daniel P. Moynihan reaffirmed the American position in a speech yesterday in the Council warning that changes inacceptable to any one of the parties "will not work."

The intentionally ambiguous Resolution 242 only speaks of Israeli withdrawal from "territories occupied in the recent conflict." It does not say from territories, as does the new Arab-approved working paper. Moreover, the resolution balances the call for withdrawal with an assertion about the right of all states in the area to "live in peace within secure and recognized bound-

A number of Europeans have objected to the absence in the working paper of any mention of Israel's right to exist. Yesterday in the Council the United States, Britain and Italy insisted that the validity of Resolution 242 had to be reaffirmed, and Panama, while supporting the Arab position on other points, also spoke of Israel's right to secure boundaries.

It has been clear from the debate that the Security Council members, with the excep tion of the United States, would agree to a resolution avowing the "national inallenable rights of the Palestinians.

Ever since we introduced the Lady in Green, we've had many wonderful comments from depositors. Even from non-depositors who came in just to see if, indeed, she was "for real." We guarantee that she isand that she's here to greet you and to answer your questions courteously. One woman even asked if the Lady in Green could do her banking for her so she wouldn't have to stand in line. Our Lady in Green smiled and said that was one of the few things she couldn't do. As a result, since they had to concentrate on lines and character development, it proved more difficult than anticipated to integrate new material or cut the 31/4-hour play during the final week of performance. But through the final night, there were continual changes—new stag-ing, new interpretations and > prompter ready or script in The members of the cast were paid union scale for their stint—a far cry from what someone like Lily Tomin would normally earn. Sunday night, after the last performance. Miss Tomlin said she was still trying "to find" the role of Opal. "I am still trying to get under her skin," she explained.

rewritten scenes played with

"Lily wouldn't have had so much trouble with the character if I had done a better job of writing her," Miss Buchanan said. "She is still too sterile. I have to give her more history, more contrast-she's just sort of a race machine." The two of them had stayed up each night working, rehearsing with a tape recorder, until 3 and 4 A.M. trying to define the character of Opal, the Arizona spinster postmistress who dominates the

Miss Tomlin agreed to do the play because "it was Cynthia's work, and a short commitment, and the material appealed to me." The two are old friends.

For Miss Buchanan, the playwright, the most fun was when the play started to come alive in rehearsal. "I couldn't believe it," she said. "I learned from the audience more than anything elseturbed by the play-I know now where it communicates and where it doesn't. I wish were starting all over from scratch and I could bring the revised play back for the same audiences, to show them what I have learned." She is returning to New York this week to begin the 25th draft-"while it is still fresh in my mind."

NOW! 200 YEARS LATER. "THE BRITISH ARE COMING". AGAIN.

Over 150 strong, Her Majesty's Massed Bands, pipes, drums and dancers will be invading our shores, in a gain:

tribute to America's 200th birthday. in this lavish family entertainment, the Royal Marines. respleadent in their dazzling bine uniforms, topped by white helmots, and the legendary Black Watch, in their traditional kilts and towering headdresses, perform with the brilliant pomp and coremony that the British alone can create.

And in this unusual tribute to the United States they play many American marches and tunes and, in part of the program, even perform in the same uniforms worn bere during the Revolution. :

You will thrill to the exciting display of Highland sword dancing, precision marching, and the chilling sounds of the ancient pipes and drums, coupled with the glorious music of the combined regimental bands.

This spectacular theatrical presentation will prove to be one of the most memorable events in this Bicontennial year.

a most interesting dancer, with a certain quiet author-repeated hearings confirm that it is some of the most graceful and yet serious the-ater music Leonard Bernchoreographer to fall hope-lessly in love with Mr. Balan-chine's work and still survive.

The central duet, for Suzanne Farrell and Mr.

Martins, is a special pleasure.

Sensuous, languorous, wan-derfully musical and inven-tive, it is the flip side of romanticism, a little casual and a little sexy, and still tender and concerned. Miss Farrrell and Mr. Martins are now dancing together as if they were almost one body—

"The Dybbuk Varia-"Bart Cook filled in for

A decade ago—before the days of Michael Bennett, Harold Prince or even, in a way, Bob Fosse—the leading Broadway director in the musical theater was Jerome Robbins. And, in absentia, he still is. Most producers with a musical on their hands routinely, if with bleak hope, offer it to Mr. Robbins first. But Mr. Robbins has found his own theater in the sky; it is called the New York City Ballet and it keeps him content. Moreover, if anyone thinks "Pacific Overtures" is innovative and imaginative, which it most certainly is, he should see "Watermill." Still, that is hardly the point.

On Sunday night at the ew York State Theater, the City Ballet by chance gave a complete Robbins evening. These are fairly rare, because naturally and properly Mr. Robbins defers to George Balanchine and is proud to olay Ivanov to Mr. Balanchine's Petipa. It was a wonderful program — opening with "The Dybbuk Variations," continuing with "In G Major" (there's a real Baltheme of possession and ex-orcism; even the work's anchine-sounding title for you!) and ending with "The Concert." There is a horizon-Nothing at all is under-stated in the flamboyant and expanding range here, from the mystics of the first, to the pure dance enthusiasm of the second, to the zany comedy of the last. 'PanamaHattie'Staged at Equity Library

It should surprise nobody that "Panama Hattie," Ethel Merman's first solo starring vehicle back in 1940, has been appealingly revived by the Equity Library Theater, 103d Street at Riverside

The weakness is still the book-a silly business involving Panama Canal spies. Furthermore, Miss Merman was singing acceptable Cole Porter, no more.

The appeal of the Equity revival is its general tone of good-natured understanding and a pretty, spacious production (sets by Philipp Jung, lighting by Emily Jefferson), with sufficient Porter juice, including some from other Porter shows.

As Hattie, the nightclub den mother of bygone Panama City, a redhead named Mary Ellen Ashley couldn't be more charming. Warmer than Miss Merman, and a little like Garrett around the edges, she peals nicely enough with her own sturdy pipes. Miss Ashley's simple guine, "Make It Another Old Fashioned, Please," is a model serving of the best Porter tune.

Of the game supporting cast. Lynn Martin as a languid spy and Douglas Hayle as a lofty butler are most amusing. Michael Davis and May Keller lend firm vocal support, and the stage reticence of a little girl named Diana Barrows is refreshing.
As three knock about sailors, Robert Browning, Terrance McKerrs and Michaeljohn McGann cheerfully grapple with some flat, burlesque humor that could have been pruned by about 15 minutes.

But the spirit of fun persists and so does the sensible direction of Charles Abbott, the flavorsome adroitness of Roger Braun's choreography—with some fine, tap clattering and the festive look of Mimi Berman Maxmen's costumes. The new Hattie is a doll, and Old Panama still percolates. HOWARD THOMPSON

ONY WILLIAMS BAND AT THE BOTTOM LINE

Tony Williams, the driner whose latest quartet is appearng through tonight at the Botom Line, organized the first and to successfully fuse jazz nd rock—the original Tony Villiams Lifetime with John AcLaughlin, the guitarist. But, while Mr. McLaughlin went on o become the first jazz-rock uperstar, Mr. Williams's subsequent groups were for the most art lackluster affairs.

Now Mr. Williams Is back, fter a two-year vacation from eading a group, with a promis-ag new Lifetime. Unfortunatey, promise and volume are bout all his musicians were elivering during their opening et Monday night.

Tony Newton was solid and isually commanding on bass. But Allan Holdsworth, guitated the impact of his ist, vitiated the impact of his svishing tone and exemplary echnique by failing to pace imself, while Alan Pasqua, the eyboard player offered a vola-ile but insufficiently integrated tyle. Mr. Williams, once the most ensitive of drummers, was ashing so loudly he sometimes rowned out the guitar. But killed player and if he can 10ld his young firebrands into cohesive unit, he will have ne of the better jazz-rock .nds around.

Dance: Robbins Evening Dessoff Choirs Excel in Minor Schubert STATE ARTS FUND | matter from the $841 million diplents, would granted in both 1974-75 and careful growth

Schubert composed hun-threds of works in his short life and an amazing propor-tion of them hold a firm place in the affection of musicians as well as in the standard repertory But, At present the male roster of principals is ravaged by injuries. year-old group that seldom does the usual, presented a program of such minor Schubert works at Alice Tul-ly Hell on Monday night. Only two of the works even omy two of the works even approached the scope of greater Schubert (the Massin G and ?Mirjams and Siegesgesang"), but nothing fell short of being skillfully crafted and lyrically attractive. Frank Hoffmeister's light but wreat voice for instance. voice, for instance, caught the silvery gleam of "Nachthelle," a nocturne for tenor and men's chorus, and

Michael Hammond's conducting balanced the combination

In the Mass, Betty Jones proved less than ideal as the soprano soloist (thin of tone and often off the pitch) and Ronald Corrado's baritone was employed with more operatic bravado than suited the material. The performance, however, went off well otherwise, with Mr. Hammond doing an excellent job of integrating choral, organ and orchestral sound.

A favorite of amateur choral societies because of its brevity and relative lack of difficulties, the mass was sung in Schubert's original version, with the ?et unam sanctum catholicam et apostolicaro tolicam ecclesiam" section deleted from the Credo. (Schubert seems to have had his doubts Qabout the primaof the Roman Catholic church.) Pious editors some-times restore the words and even add some spurious music to fit them. Mirjams Siegesgesang,"

Miss Jones, for whose voice the molodic line seemed to lie alternately too high and too low. The performance sustained much of its interest through the authority of Sa-muel Sanders, who handled the quasi-orchestral piano part excitingly. A standout, too, was Lorna Myers, as soloist in "Stand-(not the familiar solo sung but a work for women's chorus and mezzo-soprano). Miss Myers, who was born in Trinidad, W.L. graduated this year from the Juilliard School and recently appeared in "Treemonisha" on Broadway. She sang the serenade with lustrous tone and a good deal of feeling for ensemble blending.

Between choral pieces (among the others were "Lebenslust," "An die Sonne" "Der Tanz" and "Schicksalslenker, blicke nieder"), Mr. Hammond conducted brief orchestral dance works drawn from Schubert's seemingly inexhaustible store of occasional music. On the whole, the chorus and the small orchestra responded nicely to Mr. Hammond's di-

He Advocates Mussels as a Delicious Answer to Food Shortas

Experiments by C. Graham Hurlburt involving mussels have attracted interest in the United States and Canada. Mr.Hurlburt says many countries can do much to help alleviate world hunger through commercial cultivation of the common blue mussel.

Special to The New York Times

DUXBURY, Mass.—To a nonathletic type whose sporting blood courses somewhat slowly through his veins, it was a highly unlikely feat on a highly unlikely day. The temperature howered somewhere in the 20's, the sky was overcast and gray and even the honkers floating on the bay looked desolate and cold. We souggled more deeply into a quilted ski-jacket, wiggled our toes in a pair of borrowed oversize rubber boots and tried to coordinate fingers to pad as C. Graham Hurlburt maneuvered his Land Rover bayside, backing his 16-foot fiber glass skiff toward the "First time this bay's frozen over in years," he said, which did little to buoy our spirits or warm the air. "But look out yonder." Out yonder, we observed as we descended from the automobile and sank to our ankles in mud, were vast patches of black, rather large inky islands surrounded by water and ice.

"Everything black there is mussels, millions of them and that's for lunch." That was a warming

Mr. Hurlburt, who is director of administrative services at Harvard University, is convinced that given rope enough and time—and unpolluted water - the United States or any other country can do much to alleviate world hunger through commercial cultivation of the common, edible blue mussel, the kind that appear on French menus as monles marinière, moules poulette, moules frites and as the basis for billi-bi, the most delectable of soups.

"Most Americans don't eat mussels," Mr. Huribur said. "Only the timest percentage of the population knows anything about them. The people who really covet them in this country are Europeans of a first or second generation, people who have traveled a great deal in Europe or people who frequent European restaurants."

Mr. Hurlburt stated that he's eaten mussels all his life, that he has an adventurous appetite and practically nothing that wiggles or squirms in Duxbury or Plymouth Bay was beyond his

"My vice president called me in and asked how I'd like a year's leave to pursue any line of work that interested me, much the same as professors on a sabbatical," he said.

A Family Investigation

"Living around here all my life, I'd always been fascinated with mussels, how good they taste and how easily they proliferate. I also knew that mussels are grown commercially in Spain. France and the Netherlands among other places in Europe, so I decided to take my family, my wife and three of the four children, to investigate

It is possible under the best of circumstance he said, to grow up to 300,000 pounds of mussel meat per acre, adding that this is much more productive than beef raising.

"The astonishing thing to me is the nutritional value of the common blue mussel in relation to choice T-bone steaks," Mr. Hurlburt said. He has published a comparison of the two, which appeared in a Department of Agriculture handbook. and it is indeed astonishing.

The comparison of three and a half ownces of steak to a comparable amount of mussels found the protein content practically the same. Steak had more than four times more calories the Beef, the study found, had more than more fat than mussels, while mussels grams of carbohydrates and beef none. ment of Agriculture researcher put the content of mussels slightly below that or

SUCCESS That, at least, was the impression left after a line of men's clothing designed by Egon von Furstenberg was shown for the first time in the United States the other afternoon in the anditorium of the McGraw Hill Building on the Avenue of the Americas.

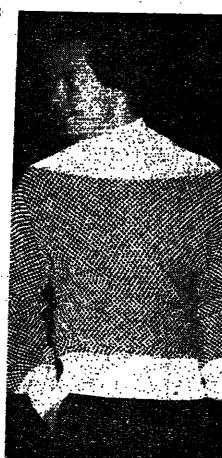

Judging by the applause evoked from the gathering of store representatives, press, designers and friends. it was with his long, dramatic A-line overcoats that Prince von Furstenberg came closest to his expressed goal of blending individuality and classicism in a manner remimiscent of the stylishness of the late Duke of Windsor.

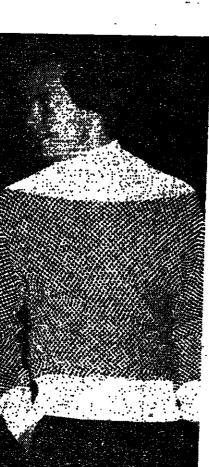

3 Predominant Colors As a whole, the showing of clothing for next fall ran from vested single- and double-breasted suits, through sweaters with a variety of necklines to slacks, blazers, sport jackets and rainwear, to athietic oufits marked principally by the use of white terry cloth.

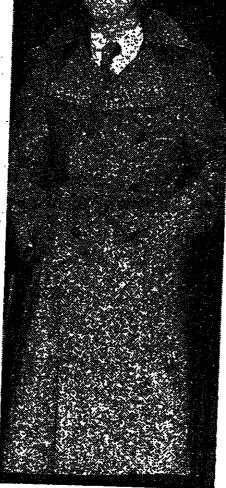

Along with some of the audience, the Prince was enthusiastic about his sweaters. Generally loose fitting, they seemed to offer a neckline for every taste. And many instances, white was blended with the predominant colors of the showing-brown, navy and brick. Brown, in fact, was so conspicuous by its not unwelcome presence that Prince von Furstenberg was pressed later into explaining that it was because "last year I did

Not Competing

He and Mrs. von Furstenberg, who is a successful designer of knitted jersey dresses, have since separated. Prince von Furstenberg says he is not competing with his wife, but would not mind emulating her success.

And, since he was born a von Furstenberg, he says he his first full line of men's is not trading on the name. In fact, he said before the

Somebody finally thought of it. What is billed as the Festival for the public will be shown this weekend at the former Fifth Avenue

Although most of the filmmakers are American, the crafts they show were re-corded all over the world. And although all the films concern crafts, they are definitely not how-to.

Rather, they are designed to give a sense of what it is like to dye kimonos in Japan, to make papier-maché figures in Mexico, to carve a violin in Zagreb, to enamel copper paintings in America —an under-the-skin view of how it feels to be a craftsthat perhaps no other me dium of communication could.

Covering many kinds of crafts and using a number of approaches—documentary, personal history, photographic essay—these films have something in common that is unspoken. It is the layers of relationship between where the craftsman lives and how he works, what materials he uses and how he fashions them. In the life of the dedicated arti-san, all these elements merge. Work and life become

"Hands," clearly the best of the 11 films cuiled from 85 entries, is an example of this. By interspersing old, yel-lowed stills with the step-bystep building of a canoe and scenes of the woods in which the canoe-builder lives, a portrait emerges of a man at one with his environment. There is another common thread in these films: that of crafts as a tradition, a tradition that in many cases

And an Outstanding Boo

The buy of the year - this year, almost any year - in crafts books is unquestionably "The Craftsman in America," recently published by the National Geographic Society.

For $4.25, the society has put together a handsome hardcover book, spilling over with color photographs. It is an overview of different aspects of crafts in this country. (which gives it all the necessary Bicentennial overtones), and is written by seven authorities in the field. The styles are clear, lively and literate, interspersing personal recollections and history with warm, informative interviews.

Each chapter beyond the first, which is a general introduction, deals either with a specific category (wood, fiber arts, clay, metalwork), a region (the folk crafts of Southern mountains) or a particular tox tion (the wide range of nautical craft In each case, there is a history of craft; a look at those craftsmen who dow themselve to the reproduction or presi tion of the old crafts (usually at histor

DRUG RESEARCH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)

—A six-month Federal investigation of G. D. Searle & Company has turned up widespread evidence of "sloppy" research studies that call into question the safety of drugs taken by millions of Americans, the Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration testified today at a Senate hearing. Because of the initial findings in the Searle investigation, Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt, the Commissioner, said, drug inspectors are expanding their review of similar data submitted by other major pharmaceutical companies.

Dr. Schmidt said that he expected the review to show that beet the six of the scarle was "the everytop rather than the fact that it is pected the review to show that the pected the review to show the pected the review to show the pected the review to show the pected the review to sh

By FRANK J. PRIAL

Shortly before he died, Frank Schoonmaker sent along a copy of his most recent "Almanac of Wine." This pocketsize book, which is not much bigger than an American Express card, is one of the best small compendiums of wine knowledge in existence.

The newest edition covers the vintage years 1959 to 1974 and rates the wines of the different regions of France and Germany with 20 as the highest score. The wines of Italy, Spain and Portugal are rated by vintages and the wines of California are listed by grape types, with no attempt to rate individual labels.

The Schoonmaker rating system marks any wine from 18 to 20 points as "very great," 16 or .17 as "great," 15 as "very good," 14 as "good," 12 or 13 as "fair," 11 as "poor" and anything under that as "very poor."

Of the 1974 vintage in Burgundy, Mr. Schoonmaker said: "The truly scrupulous growers who trad kept their production within reasonable limits, made wines which can fairly be described as 'good' (14), with some 'very good,' possibly a few to be rated even bigher.

"Do not lay too many of the 1974's away. . . . In any case they will be vastly better than the '68's, '65's and '63's."

Of the 1973's in Burgundy, he said: "The largest crop in the modern history of Burgundy and beyond question, a great year. (17½). The fine reds, surprisingly enough, will be ready to drink before the '72's and '71's and, possibly, before some '69's.

"Few of them would seem likely to improve for as much as 10 yearsfive or six would be a better guess—and in this they are a little like the 1959's."

The 1972's which are much in evidence in the shops these days, got a 16 from Mr. Schoonmaker. He called them "big and solid wines in the old burgundy style." By "the old burgundy style" he meant "great quality, assuredly long life, big body."

1971 Burgundies Applauded

The previous year, 1971, gleaned an "extraordinary" from the cautious Mr. Schoonmaker. "Perhaps best on the especially-a flat 19," he wrote. Elsewhere, most burgundies in the 1971 viotage rated a minimum of 17.

The 1970's got a 16 and the 1969's were called simply the best of a series of "six extraordinary years." Rating red burgundies since 1969, Mr. Schoonmaker put them in this order: 1969, 1971, 1973, 1970, 1972 and 1974. Of the bordeaux, he rated 1974 "better than we had any right to expect," and came up with a 13.5. The 1973's are "a bit lacking in body and color for the long pull," he wrote, "but will make good drinking, for they are tender, fresh, fruity, early maturing." They get

'Hard, Unprepossessing'

The 1972 bordeaux, he said, probably will not be ready to drink before 1977-78 at the earliest. Called "rather hard, unprepossessing at the moment," they get a 12, which presumably could go up if the wines improve with age.

A surprising 17 went to the 1971's in Mr. Schoonmaker's opinion, and the 1970's got a minimum of 18. It is not, he said, "the best year of our generation or of our lifetime: almost certainly it is less good than '61; almost certainly it is the best year since."
The 1969's got a Schoonmaker 13 and the 1968's got "perhaps a 5, the 5 for effort."

Mr. Schoonmaker was planning to wist Bordeaux in early spring to taste the 1975 vintage, which some French advance men have been touting as better than 1961. He was skeptical but hopeful. Some of the most acerbic Schoonmaker comments were reserved for beauju-lais "nouveau," the big fad of the last three or four years and, this past

"It improves with keeping about as much as fresh lettuce," Mr. Schoonmaker wrote. "It is one of the exceedingly rare wines which truly cannot 'travel.' It is never quite as good in Lyon as in the vineyard village where it was born. It is even slightly less good in Paris; decidedly less attractive in New York; and when it reaches, say. a package-store in Chicago or San Francisco, it is not at all what it was originally intended to be."

Harsh words, which quickly will be challenged by any shopkeeper with an inventory of beautolais "nouveau." Interestingly enough, Mr. Schoonmaker derived most of his income over the last four decades from selling wine. His death leaves few people in the trade with his expert knowledge and fewer still with his kind of, well, au-curate guidance systems. end insert. PU "Mr. Kissinger's Mr. Kissinger's latitude in working out an arrangement with the Russians will be circumscribed in part by the interservice rivalries and vested interests developing within the Defense Department to advance cruise-missile programs and to protect these programs against diplomatic limitations.

There is a certain irony in this situation, as Mr. Kissinger somewhat ruefully acknowledges. After the 1972 interim agreement placing limits on offensive strategic missiles, it was Mr. Kissinger who proposed that the Pentagon under-take development of long-range

A Bargaining Clip'

Mr. Kissinger' concept then was that the cruise missiles would give him another "bargaining chip" to win Soviet agreement on a longer-term strategic arms agreement on offensive weapons. But Mr. Kissinger now laments in pri-vate conversations, "I didn't realize the Pentagon would fall in love with cruise missiles."

On the basis of the original Kissinger suggestion, the Defense Department has undertaken three competing programs to develop long-range cruise missiles—two by the Navy and one by the Air Force. The development costs of the programs approach $1.5 billion, and production of the missiles could double the figure.

The Navy's two cruise-missile programs are competing—one being developed by the General Dynamics Corporation in San Diego, the other by the Vought Aerospace Company in Dallas. Both missiles are near the flight-test stage, and the Navy is supposed to make a choice between them this spring.

2,000-Mile Range

The Navy's strategic cruise missile would have a range of 2,000 miles. While designed to be launched out of a torpedo tube of a submerged submarine, the Navy missile could also be fired from a surface ship or from an Air Force The Air Force's air-launched cruise missile is being developed by the Boeing Company in Seattle, and will start its flight tests late next month. It is designed to have a range of about 1,000 miles.

An example of the difficult situation for new Ph.D. recipients is given in figures showing the proportion year-by-year of Ph.D.'s who said they had no specific job pros-pects at the time they obained their degrees.

Dr. Edward J. Bloustein, speaking this week to Ruigers alumni in Chicago, said that elementary and secondary education should be extended beyond high school.

However, he conceded that "in light of inequitable tax systems and unbalanced state budgets, such a proposal is visionary."

Tuition at Rutgers is now $585 a year, and two members of the New Jersey Department of Higher Education said last week that an increase was likely,

Is it realistic to study art in today's economy?

At The School of Visual Arts we believe art is a growing field for successful careers. Film and Video Tape are widely used in industry, government and education. Graphics and illustration have also expanded as fields. Photography is necessary to all media. Even the Fine Arts have re-defined areas and are discovering new ways to bring personal statements to the public. But the study of art gives you more than a job. It provides a foundation for a special kind of life style, one that emphasizes self discovery. encourages flexibility and offers a base for a number of working directions.

Illustrators who become art directors are not rare. Film directors work in video tape as well. Photographers become cameramen. Our four year career oriented degree programs are designed with realistic goals, but never to the exclusion of the importance of individual talent and the careful way it deserves to be developed.

For more information about our unique approach to educating artists, call or write: The School of Visual Arts. 209 East 23rd Street, New York, N.Y. 10010, (212) 679-7350.

The Found Generation

CHILDREN OF THE SUN By Martin Green, 470 pages. Illustrated. Basic Books $15. Martin Green has got it into his head that all the English boys who "hated games" at school played at being dandies, rogues, naifs and Pierrots instead. "Children of the Sun" is subtitled "A Narrative of 'Decadence' in England after 1918," and for all the famous names it invokes, like a min telling her beads, it is very slow oing.

Much of the book is devoted to distinguishing who was a dandy, who a rogue, naif or Pierrot. Some poor boys are bent to fit more than one of these characterizations, Beau Brummell and Baudelaire made the dandy famous, and his ambivalence toward the other sex might as well be investigated along with everything elsebut what Mr. Green treats us to here is not an interpretation of the dandy-such as Ellen Moers gave as in her interesting book of the subject—but a series of descriptions. Very tame descriptions of schoolboy pranks and preciosity.

In rebelling against their fathers, these boys—Harold Acton and Brian Howard are the heroes of the book-were throwing down the gauntiet, or kerchief, to Victorian England. They had only one joke, these poor fellows, and they tried to stretch it to include both papa and country. According to Mr. Green, their lives at Eton and Oxford were so intensely estheticized that they were condemned to a kind of permanent "artistic" acne. Adult life was an anticlimax. They had nothing

Ceaseless Peregrinations

Mr. Green is talking about men such as Evelyn Waugh, Randolph Churchill, W. H. Anden, Christopher Isherwood, Stephen Spender, Cecil Beaton, Cyril Con-nolly, John Strachey, Kim Philby, Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean. One would expect a few decent anecdotes with a cast like that, but this is the sort of thing one gets: "They [Harold Acton and his family] also traveled in Europe, going in 1910 to Paris; in 1911 to Etretat; and in 1912 to Berlin, Scandinavia, and Binz on the German island of Rugen, where Harold acquired a lump of amber that accompanied him as a talisman all through his Oxford days and beyond."

This itinerary-listing compulsion is reminiscent of Michael Holroyd's detailing of Augustus John's ceaseless peregrinations in his recent book on the painter. Upper-class Englishmen after World War I emed to have been very restless chaps, and current English biography is determined to dog their steps. It is difficult to see what purpose it serves when the places are merely named, as they generally

In his anxiety for us to get it right, Mr. Green tells us on page 213 that Cechi Beaton was "a snob and a dandy, who hated family life and school games"; then on page 214, we read that he "hated games and family life, and was a conscius snob end a flamboyant dandy." We are twice told that the Acton villa in Italy contained "two huge Negr obusts in lu-

A Tribute to Sitwell

"Children of the Sun" is a tempest in a teacup, with the little finger crooked. There is hardly a decent anecdote or quotation in the whole book. Neither Harold Acton, Brian Howard nor any of the other young men the author chooses to focus on shows the slightest sign of talent until he is beyond the confines of the book. Here is Brian Howard's tribute to Edith Sitwell: "The greatest poet of the grotesquerie de cauchemar that ever lived." When one reads of a "rogue" who "loved being a silk-stocking salesman and forcing women to buy stockings they did not need," it is tempting to recall the more imaginative antics of Jacques Vache, Ray-mond Roussel, Kurt Schwitters and other in a peculiar attempt to introduce a dialectic into English life, Mr. Green—who is also the author of the recent, highly regarded "The Von Richthofen Sisters"sets up a rival camp consisting of George Orwell F. R. Leavis and D. H. Lawrence. Lawrence makes an awkward companion here, as he would anywhere, and one imagines that both Orwell and Leavis would resent being characterized as monolithic "decent men"—almost as Dickens used to say of benign lower-class characters, "he is an honest, harmless creature." Norman Mailer, who is not English, is brought over to show us, by contrast, how "limited, predictable and stolid" Evelyn Wangh's admirable World War II trilogy is, by comparison with "The Naked and the Dead."

Toward the end of "Children of the Sun," Mr. Green confides to us his critic's credo: "And a critic may—it is my instinct that in this time and place he should sacrifice standards to ideas, sacrifice consistency to responsiveness, and sacrifice virtue to fertility." One feels that he has indeed made all these sacrifices, but not with the desired results. To say that "Children of the Sun" is composed mainly of the sort of lines that Evelyn Waugh and Anthony Powell would, on their worst days, have struck out of their novels

8 surprising ways to make DREYFUS Liquid Assets workforyou

- Take advantage of current interest rates. Dreyfus Liquid Assets invests your money exclusively in large money market instruments. As a shareholder, you can benefit from higher interest rates than you may be ableto find elsewhere, especially if you want total liquidity. And you can invest as little as $2,500.
- Earn income on your cash reserves even over short periods of time. If you're keeping extra money in your checking or savings account-money you don't need now but might need later-put some of it into Dreyfus Liquid Assets until you actually need it. Even if it's just for a few weeks, your money will be working for you.
- Maintain liquidity and stability. As a shareholder of Dreyfus Liquid Assets, you own an interest in a very large and relatively stable pool of money market instruments. The money you invest is not tied up in any way. You can cash in your shares at net asset value at any time, or add to your investment whenever you wish (minimum $500). And because your money goes into stable short-term obligations, there is very little fluctuation in the value of your shares.
- Write checks on your Dreyfus Liquid Assets account to pay large bills. You can write a check for any amount over $500. You'll earn income right up to the day the check clears. We give you a free supply of checks. Pay your doctor, your broker, taxes, tuition -any large bill. Or take out cash for yourself.
- Isn't it time you got the facts about Dreyfus Liquid Assets? You can get a prospectus and a free information booklet-without any obligation-just by mailing the coupon. Or call this toll-free number at any hour of the day or night.

- 5 Diversify your portfolio. Dreyfus Liquid Assets invests only in ILS Tressury and Agency invests only in U.S. Treasury and Agency securities, certificates of deposit issued by the largest banks, bluechip commercial paper, and bankers' acceptances. Do you have this kind of quality and safety in your portfolio now?
- Save yourself the trouble of making your own money market investments. If you've been buying notes, bills or certificates of deposit for yourself or your organization, you'll find it's a lot easier to buy Dreyfus Liquid Assets. There's no paperwork, no worrying about maturity dates, roll-overs, safekeeping or delivery-and there's no sales charge.
- Take care of fiduciary responsibilities. If you're in temporary charge of someone else's moneyas an executor or trustee-you can relieve yourself of investment responsibilities by setting up a Dreyfus Liquid Assets account. The money will be available instantly when it's needed, and until then it will be productively invested and professionally managed.
- Give yourself a regular monthly income. You can keep your dividends reinvested in additional shares—or have them paid to you monthly or quarterly. And if you invest $5,000 or more, you can arrange to receive fixed payments of $50 or more every month or quarter. Of course, such a plan may result in your account being depleted if your withdrawals exceed your dividends.

ing classes, such as this one in English at Julia Richman High School, may cease at the er month as the budget crisis could force the elimination of the Office of Continuing Education.

By MARY BREASTED

One of the latest casualties of the budget crisis for this city of immigrants is an adult-education program that for 128 years has helped its newcomers pre-paree for citizenship.

The Office of Continuing Education, which gives adults free courses in English as a second language, in high school and elementary school equivalency and one in how to prepare for their citizenship test, is to be phased out at the end of this month.

Yesterday, the City Council's Finance Committee held a hearing to press Board of Education members to change their late yesterday, whether the hearing would produce a change in policy, but what did emerge from the five-hour session was the Council's obvious sense of sorrow that the city so traditionally open to the foreign-born might have to cut one of its major services to them.

Despite the threatened termination of the program, the Continuing Education classes have been going on in typical style, with students from all over the globe enthusiastically stumbling and stuttering their way to a mastery of the English language, often laughing at their own mistakes. Their eagerness to learn has spilled over in recent week into fervent letters to all city officials who might be called upon to save their pro-

The conflict in Lebanon appeared to be widening into a full-scale civil war as Lebanese Mosiems and some Palestinian guerrilla forces reportedly besieged or cap-tured a number of towns and villages in the north, east and south. There were charges that a Palestinian brigade had moved in from Syria but there was no confirmation that they had actually joined the siege. [Page 1: Column 1.]

Unofficial reports in Damascus said substantial Palestine Liberation Army forces had crossed from Syria into Lebanon in recent days. In Beirut, Reuters reported the leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine said Palestine Liberation Army troops had entered Lebanon. Israeli government sources said the Palestinian forces in Lebanon seemed reinforced. [1:2-4.]

Arab delegations have agreed to propose a United Nations Security Council resolution calling on Israel to withdraw from all occupied Arab territories and recognizing the national inalienable rights of the Pales tinian people. Diplomats called it a "bargaining paper" likely to go through significant changes in wording 11-21

The Cambodian Government is currently relocating hindreds of thousands of its people, primarily in the sparsely settled northwest, in a migration rivaling the evacuation of Phnom Penk last April, according to Western intelligence sources and refugees reaching Thailand. They say many have died of hardships of the journey, disease and weakness. At their destination they harvest weakness. At their disches, build earthworks and clear land. [1:5.]

Mississippi's new Governor, Chiff Finch, elected on an appeal to black and white working people, appointed Dick Gregory, jailed in Jackson in the civil rights movement of the 1960's, as one of several black and white liberals among the honorary colonels on his staff. Blacks were welcomed at three inauguration balls. Mr. Finch has brought together the predominantly black loyalist and predominantly white regular wings of the Democratic Party. [1:2.]

Former Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia found himself widely regarded as a major contender for the Democratic Presidential nomination with a solid victory in the Iowa precinct caucuses. Virtually complete returns gave him 27.63 percent of the vote to 13.16 for Senator Birch Bayh, 9.93 for Fred R. Harris, 5.97 for Morris K. Udall, 3.30 for Sargent Shriver and 1.10 for Henry M. ### Ship of State

In giving his view of the state of the Union-on which we commented briefly yesterday-President Ford made it clear that he thinks little more is required of him and of his Administration than to carry forward the policies of the last seven years.

He struck familiar themes. He warned against expecting too much of government. He urged a reduction of government's role in favor of "greater individual freedom and self-reliance," and a shift of power away from Washington to the states and localities.

There are unquestionably millions of Americans for whom the President's conception of a government with modest responsibilities and limited functions will seem exactly right. Indeed, they may wish that he had gone further in seeking to reduce government intervention in the private sector. But millions of other Americans may properly wonder where their needs and concerns fit into Mr. Ford's narrow vision of America.

There are the unemployed whose plight Mr. Ford barely mentioned and to whom he offered nothing but a generalized and vacuous hope. There are the people in the many cities across the nation where poverty is densely concentrated and where public institutionsschools, hospitals, libraries, parks, transit - are seriously underfinanced. Mr. Ford made no mention of the worsening urban crisis. He brushed aside the welfare problems as too complex to be reformed overnight and dismissed national health insurance as too expensive.

As for those many Americans who want cleaner air and water and who want to conserve the dwindling heritage of green open space, Mr. Ford offered no encouragement. He completely ignored the claims of the environment.

There is no cause for surprise at Mr. Ford's go-slow, do-little approach. As a member of Congress for a quarter century, he voted against virtually every social program proposed during that period. His budget and economic projections are framed in terms of his commitment to diminished government rather than of the fiscal realities of government or of the human needs of

The budget "ceiling" of $394 billion is clearly unrealistic. If no new programs are added, the budget will inexorably grow in the next fiscal year by another $20 billion or more. Even if strenuous economies are achieved and costly programs such as Medicare and Medicaid are overhauled, the budget cannot be reduced to anything like the President's figure. Because these inescapable hard facts are known in Congress, in the Federal departments, and by the informed public, much of the President's message takes on an air of fantasy.

Predictably, the only part of the budget where President Ford recognizes that spending must rise is the military sector. Yet the same inflation that makes weapons systems ever more expensive and makes a volunteer army an enormously costly enterprise also affects health, education, welfare, and all the other programs that the President pretends can be readily restrained

President Ford devoted barely one-sixth of his address to foreign affairs, and then in language that was superficial at best and misleading at worst. With conditions in the Middle East again rapidly deteriorating, it is disingenuous to suggest that "the key elements for peace now exist" there. Similarly, it hardly describes this country's complex and often unsatisfactory relationships with the third world to say that "our traditional friendships continue." Here as elsewhere, the President sacrificed candor and comprehensiveness in order to achieve a neat, balanced but unreal view from the captain's bridge.

Reversion in Spain

No one could have expected that Spain's political evolution would be easy after 36 years of Generalissimo Franco's authoritarian rule. Whatever their feelings about the monarchy, most Spaniards were willing to give young King Juan Carlos and his Government a period of grace in which to find for the country a safe transition route into the post-Franco era.

If the new regime were now moving unmistakably to reverse Spain's dangerous polarization of the last few years, and to provide greater participation for all Spaniards in the life of the nation, the postponement of parliamentary elections for at least a year would have been more acceptable, as new laws guaranteeing fair elections and full participation will take time to

What is disturbing is that the King's regime in the last few weeks has begun to resemble nothing so much as General Franco's regime. Particularly in trying to cope with industrial unrest-inevitable in the political vacuum left by the Generalissimo's passing and especially in a period of raging inflation-Premier Arias's Government has fallen back on tear gas and the police bludgeon to break up even manifestly peaceful demonstrations. The drafting of 70,000 railroad workers into the army to break their strike is the latest in a whole series of repressive actions.

At a time of political uncertainty and severe recession, the Government cannot simply mark time and allow the subway or railroad workers or the post office employees to imperil the economy, especially as there are extremists on the scene-Communists and others-who probably would like to organize a general strike for their political ends.

The danger is that by almost indiscriminate repression, the Government will drive the moderate forces, in and outside the unofficial trade unions, into collaboration with the extremists in self-defense. Strikes aiready settled and others close to resolution after sensible negotiations indicate that many Spanish workers are demanding only rights taken for granted in modern industrial societies. Spain's Foreign Minister, the Count of Motrico. is planning an extensive diplomatic offensive aimed at preparing the way for negotiations for eventual Spanish membership of both the European Community and the Atlantic Alliance. But the Count must aiready be embarrassed at the collapse of his prediction, made in Paris in December, that Spain would hold democratic elections

Unless he and other moderate and European-minded members of the Arias Government can prevail over their reactionary colleagues and reverse the current tide of repression, the Count may as well cancel his travels. The European Community has made it clear that its doors will never be opened to any Spanish Government that bears a strong resemblance to the regime of

Lebanese Caldron

When in 1958 Lebanon's President Chamoun appealed for United States' intervention to defend the sovereignty and independence of his Government, the response from Washington was immediate: President Eisenhower sent Yesterday the same Camille Chamoun, now Interior Minister and a leader of Lebanon's besieged Christian minority, again issued a plea for international intervention to safeguard Lebanon's integrity against leftist Moslem and Palestinian military advances. The American response was just as immediate: no.

It is not only that the perceptions of United States foreign policy interests overseas have changed over the past two decades; it is that the realities of power in Lebanon and the surrounding Middle East have altered. to the point where armed intervention by any outside force would only provoke a larger and wider tragedy than that already befallen the people of Lebanon. President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger were wise to make that point of policy abundantly clear, without any ambiguities, before dangerous uncertainties could

The United States is maintaining close contact with Israel and European governments concerned in Lebanon's fate as the military situation evolves from hour to hour. One particularly dangerous element is now clear: Units of the Palestine Liberation Army have joined in battle alongside leftist Lebanese Moslem militias, and there is strong evidence that many of the Palestinians have come from base camps across the border in Syria. It was this escalation that prompted Mr. Chamoun's futile plea. The United States and, more importantly, Israel are showing proper restraint in not immediately seizing upon the ambiguous role of the Palestinians as a pretext for forci-

Even if the immediate crisis can be passed without sparking a larger war, the threat in Lebanon of a Palestinian army responsive to orders from Damascus cannot go unnoticed in Israel, Jordan, Egypt and other nearby countries. Lebanon and Israel pose quite different problems for the troubled Middle East, yet both are directly influenced by the continuing presence and increasing militancy of the Palestinian "refugee" population.

Lebanon's ordeal gives great urgency to international efforts to confront the long-neglected problem of the Palestinians' political future—not through the ideological and propagandist maneuvers now under way in the United Nations Security Council but in a pragmatic diplomatic process, at Geneva or elsewhere, in which creative imagination may be valued more highly than righteous indignation. Israelis, Lebanese, Palestinians and the Arab governments involved now face striking new evidence of the necessity, each in their own interest, of stepping back from maximum and irreconcilable demands.

The Carey Budget

In attempting to reconcile conflicting claims of fiscal realities and political pressures, Governor Carey has produced a $10.764-billion budget that falls considerably short of the ideal from either perspective. ?

Although he has reduced state spending, especially local aid, to a degree that will cause extreme anguish among local officials throughout the state, the Governor's actual cuts are generally modest when viewed as a percentage of total spending.

Compared with Albany's record of the last three years, when spending jumped by almost one billion dollars annually, Mr. Carey's achievement in holding his new budget to an increase of only $106 million may appear truly revolutionary. It is indeed a significant start toward drastic retrenchment. But the Carey cuts may not look drastic enough to a financial community which soon will be asked to provide billions in short- and long-term loans to a state that is deepty in debt and running a current deficit in excess of $400 million.

The Governor has managed to "balance" his new budget without resort to the new taxes he once demanded, taxes which have been firmly opposed by Republicans who control the upper chamber of the State Legislature. But some of the new revenues he has projected as an alternative to taxes are highly questionable, especially his proposal to cash in on some $110 million in unused bond authorizations. This is the Republicanoriginated "backbonding" device that Mr. Carey and other Democrats once roundly-and rightly-condemned as irresponsible legerdemain.

A truly balanced budget should be purged of such trickery, even if that means additional cuts or carefully selected new taxes.

Considerations of an election year will put members of the Legislature under strong pressure to weaken, rather than strengthen the Governor's already compromised budget. Fiscal realities demand that such political temptations be firmly resisted. For, as Governor Carey repeatedly warned during his budget briefings, unless the fiscal integrity of state government is promptly restored, no community in New York can remain secure for long. The alternative to accepting essential cuts in state aid and other programs may be no state aid at all.

Federal Housing: The Better Program

To the Editor:

I am disturbed by the statements contained in your Jan. 14 editorial commenting on H.U.D.'s first annual report to the Congress on the Community Development Block Grant Program. The principal assertion of the editorial is that the community development program works against core cities in favor of affluent suburbs. The facts are, however, as follows:

I. Core cities do not compete with suburbs for funding under the Housing Community Development Act of 1974. That act, which represents a joint determination on the part of Congress and the Administration that community development funds should be provided in block grant form rather than in complex categorical programs, established exact formulas for funding, based 25 percent on population, 25 percent on incidence of substandard housing and 50 percent on the extent of poverty. This weighting, in fact, favors the older core cities. I do not share your dismay that Congress saw fit by this formula to provide a share of community development assistance to similar cities and towns as part of an increased level of over-all

Straphanger Insurance

To the Editor.

While terrorism is running rampant on our subway systems, the city continues to discourage riding of such facilities by off-duty members of the City Police Department. The traditional free usage by these members was curtailed last Sept. 1 by an arbitrary administrative decision. No cognizance was taken of economic feasibility, nor was there a costbenefit analysis. For a pittance, is the city going to make riding of the subways and buses in New York City analogous to riding stage coaches or trains in the Wild West?

Through my many years on the Police Department I have borne witness to a multitude of police actions undertaken by dedicated off-duty officers on these transit facilities. I, too, have participated in quelling disturbances and in assisting the injured or sick. This supplementing of the Transit Police does tend to reduce crime.

At a time when John Maye, president of the Transit Police P.B.A., is seeking re-employment of the 150 laidoff transit police officers (we in the N.Y.C.P.D. would like to see our almost 3,000 laid-off officers rehired) and Sanford Garelik, their chief, is reallocating more of his police to plainclothes status, this additional supplementing of Transit Police is mandatory.

Presently the N.Y.C.P.D. line organizations are seeking judicial remedy to have the free usage of transit by the off-duty police reinstated. In light of the burgeoning terrorism, wouldn't it be more feasible for the Mayor to rescind his arbitrary administrative decision? Can the safety of lives be measured against tokens? (Lieut.) The Times' Dec. 31 editorial 'Non-Cooperators," regarding "rebellious tenants at Co-op City," could not be more aptly titled. Would the facts . were as accurate.

agreement that can be of use to the American public and the Congress in approaching the prospective new permanent agreement?

The continuing shift in the balance of strategic and conventional forces to the advantage of the Soviet Union is a cause for grave national concern. It is particularly important that the United States objective in strategicarms-control negotiations with the Soviet Union be stabilization of nuclear-arms competition on a basis that Recent arguments over the need for the United States to have a strategic cruise missile, and whether or not to make room for this missile by adding to the 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles that each side agreed to at Vladivostok, suggest the need for time for additional public debate on this issue before any deal is signed.

Any agreements reached must be tently drafted and clear on all significant particulars, leaving no will be consistent with maintaining our security interests.

This means insuring that any agreements negotiated provide for essential equivalence in strategic-force capabilities and keep open to the United States those research-and-development and deployment objectives that ere essential to insure continuing equivalence over the long term in competition with a closed society that places a high premium on the acquisition of superior military power.

We must under all circumstances avoid a repetition of our experience in the first arms-limitation agreement in which regotiations against a deadlebate over the arms talks to the line produced technically imprecise ant issue: What can be learned agreements that had seriously detri-the disaster of the earlier interim semental effects on our security.

addition, they should be adequately verifiable by national technical means. In this respect, the Soviet Union's ability to evade the United States understanding of the intent of the 1972 agreements by deploying large numbers of much heavier missiles, the SS-19: the evidence suggesting Soviet violations of the United States understanding of the antiballistic-missile treaty's provisions relating to agreed ABM test ranges and to the testing of antiaircraft systems as ABM systems; and Soviet use of decoys and camouflage to interfere with United States national technical means of verification provide an object lesson to the drafters of any future armscontrol agreements.

Past performance makes it clear that to continue shifting the strategic balance to its advantage the Soviet Union can be counted on to exploit every weakness of the structure, language and enforceability of such

I believe it is of the greatest national importance that the President fully inform the Congress and the American public of the deficiencies in the strategic-arms agreements as they have come to light through our observations since 1972 and of the Soviet actions that have succeeded in defeating the key objectives that the Congress and the public were told earlier had been achieved by those

The President should be frank in discussing Soviet conduct that has been inconsistent with our larger expectations under the 1972 agreements and of the deterioration in United States security that has resulted.

The shifting balance of conventional forces is equally a source of concern. As a result of Congressional cuts in this year's budget, appropriations for the Defense Department will be inadequate to correct the disadvantageous and accelerating shift in the balance of conventional forces, which in turn poses substantial risks to the peace of the world and to the security of the American people. In this regard, rhetorical pledges to maintain a defense second to none are no substitute for the financial resources essential to make that pledge a reality.

Kissinger's Mission

By James Reston

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20-Late on the night of President Ford's State of the Union address, Secretary of State Kissinger flew to Moscow, and the interesting thing about this mission is that the Soviet Government proposed it, suggested first one date, then a second, and finally negotiated agreement on a third.

Mr. Kissinger went off, on the urging of President Ford, despite the present illness of his wife, professing not to know what the Soviet Government had in mind, but the most likely explanation is that Moscow is concerned about the rising anti-Soviet sentiment in the United States, and in the Presidential election campaign over strategic arms control, the Middle East, and Angola.

The assumption in Washington is that Ambassador Dobrynin and his colleagues in the Soviet Polithuro did not urge Mr. Kissinger to come to Moscow in order to humiliate him. This would clearly create a crisis and revive the old spirit of the cold war in the U.S. election debates.

Accordingly, at least on this assumption, there is reason to think that the Soviet Union may be prepared to make some tactical if not substantive concessions to break the stalemate in the strategic arms limitation talks, and avoid deeper involvement as a key issue between Mr. Ford and Ronald Reagan, and between the Republicans and Senator Henry Jackson in the Presidential campaign.

Moscow has never pretended that it was indifferent to the outcome of Presidential elections in the United States, Nikita Khrushchev boasted that he had made moves that might help Jack Kennedy in the election of 1960. Though Richard Nixon was never a favorite of the Soviets, they calculated that he would be re-elected in 1972, and said so, with reckless indiscretion, at the strategic arms talks in Helsinki.

Events affecting the state of the world can often be more important in elections than speeches on the state of the nation. We may not like this in fact we don't like it at all but it is a fact. If Mr. Kissinger gets a compromise on the control of nuclear weapons in Moscow this week, especially if it is a genuine move toward limitation of the nuclear arms race but even if it is a tactical compromise indicating some progress, it will still be a factor in the Presidential debate, and nobody knows this better than President Ford or the Soviets.

Reagan of California is arguing that 'one-way street" and a fraud in which. Washington makes all the concessions and Moscow gets all the technological and political advantages. Scoop Jackon the Democratic side is making the same argument, with more knowledge of the facts.

Leonid Brezhnev has to go before the Communist Party Congress in a few weeks and Mr. Ford has to go against Mr. Reagan in the New Hampshire primary, defending the policy of détente, and they have a common interest in demonstrating that compromise is better than confrontation and a return to the cold war.

Also, in practical terms, the Soviets can make concessions in the SALT controversy over their Backfire bomber and the U.S. cruise missile, without risking a change in the balance of military power in the world.

The Soviets have the Backfire bomber in production. Our cruise missile, an unmanned remotely controlled weapon, won't be operational for five or six years. Moscow can agree to limit the numbers and bases and refueling capacity of the Backfire so that this bomber will not be a threat to the United States. That is the assue that has been worrying Washington -the freedom to produce the Backfire in unlimited numbers, and base them within striking distance of the United States.

This is an immensely complicated military, scientific and political problem, and nothing said here is meant to suggest that Mr. Kissinger has gone to Moscow, on direction from the President, to ease Mr. Ford's political problems at home.

But to go back to the beginning, it was the Soviets who suggested the Kissinger visit, and a hopeful aspect is that they recognize the drift in American public and political opinion back toward the venomous days of the 40's, 50's and 60's, and feel this is not in their national interest or in

In any event, compromises on the control of nuclear weapons must be submitted to the Congress for approval, and, before they could be put into operation, have to meet the most searching analysis by experts on atomic weapons, like former Secretary of Defense Schlesinger, Paul Nitze and Gerard Smith, who have been negotiating with the Soviets for years.

Still, even a limited compromise in the Kissinger-Soviet talks this week in Moscow would be a political event in the campaign if nothing else. It would help the President ease the pressure on détente and the Russians, and this may have been what Moscow had in mind by inviting Mr. Kissinger the Ford-Kissinger policy of détente to the Soviet Union in the first place.

Ambassador Bruce's talents were those of the last eighteenth-century American gentleman. A tall, handsome. elegant man, erudite and immensely cultivated, he is a sportsman, knowledgeable about wine, furniture, food, fashion, books, philosophy, politics, war, impeccably courteous and infinitely humane. While he was stationed in Bonn he used to sit eround with Konrad Adenauer sipping Rhine wine and discussing Renaissance painting, on which the old Chancellor was expert. Adenauer said to me: "If you Americans can't send Bruce back here again, at least send somebody just like him." Bruce was an intimate of Churchill, Eden, Macmillan and the leading French statesmen of the Fourth Republic. He had a fine working relationship with Chou En-lai. At NATO he was regarded as a kind of human monument. His life was by no means staid and conventional. As Paris was being liberated in 1944, he and his friend Ernest Hemingway worked their way to the Ritz Hotel har with a raging group of Free French and O.S.S. fighters. The manager asked Bruce if he wanted anything to drink, "Yes," he answered,

"seventy martinis." Over the years his observations have stood the test of time. In 1950, against Pentagon opposition, he advocating sharing America's secret weapons with our allies, arguing: "We do not plan any aggressive war, so even if the Russians learn their secrets, it won't matter to us. The Russians will have to learn them some day anyway."

He urged Churchill to back the European army project for rearming Germany. He criticized Admiral Radford for wanting to use nuclear weapons at Dien Bien Phu. He thought Adlai Stevenson would be a bad Sec retary of State but an extremely good ambassador to the United Nations. He thought Britain's only future lay in Europe.

China always fascinated him. When President Eisenhower offered him the Indian embassy he declined, but said if China ever opened up, that's what he wanted. Had the Democrats won the 1956 elections, Bruce (a Democrat although he served Presidents from both parties) would have been anxious to go to Peking.

When eventually sent by President Nixon, he was fascinated by Mao Tse-tung, Chou (and above all the simplicity of Chou's life-except for a superb cuisine). Bruce used to quip: "China is capturing the third world at the banquet table."

He wrote one book, a study of the first sixteen U.S. Presidents, called "Revolution to Reconstruction." Of these, he told Eisenhower, the most effective were Washington and the two Adams's who had sought to represent the electors. Until he entered the White House, Lincoln (Bruce thought) had been a lazy, ambitious

IARRISBURG, Pa.—New leadership l new people are desperately needin Washington. Both the President 1 Congress have falled to come to ps with the real problems that beset people. Legislation on critical isa like tax cuts and energy has been fittle, too late. The energy crisis, singeish economy, high unemploynt and inflation are still with us. The Washington attitude was aprent in early 1974, when I tried to went a strike by the National Inpendent Truckers. Washington did thing. The energy crisis worsened. e sinke became violent. Still no

I have proved my executive ebility in private business as the founder and president of a major corporation and in government as an economic consultant with the Kennedy Administration, and now as a second-term Governor of our fourth largest state.

No other candidate can match my record. I will bring to the Presidency clearly defined goals and programs. First, the Federal machinery must be modernized. I will bring 1,000 business executives to Washington for one year at no cost to the taxpayers to review every department and recommend how to cut costs and streamline services. I did this in Pennsylvania in 1971. By 1973, we were saving taxpayers $164 million in annual expenses. In 1974, we had a $360 million tax cut. In Washington, we could save billions.

Second, I would change the Federal budgeting system to show clearly where the people's money goes and why. Today, we have no budget. As President Kennedy said at Yale on June 11, 1962, we should separate operating costs from capital expenditures, like any normal business does, so we can make intelligent decisions on spending priorities. Third, we need a national investment policy for the nation. We must make public-sector investments to stimulate key private sector industries and thereby generate greater profits and create millions of new jobs. These investments will put America back to Presidential nomination:

work, help achieve stable prices and meet our national needs for energy development, housing, education, transportation, health care and polintion control.

A major cause of inflation in America today is our low (66 percent) rate of productivity. Investment programs will raise this rate of productivity and help carb inflation.

Further, this investment policy will enable us to institute long-range programs essential for economic growth. For example, a self-financing National Rail Trust Fund to modernize our railroads and a revolving National Education Trust Fund to finance schools and enable our cities to reduce property

Fourth, I would order a complete review of our foreign policy. United States prestige has deteriorated badly in the past tan years. We need a consistent, positive policy and program to overcome the aftermath of Vietnam and Watergate.

The Presidency is the toughest executive position in the world. It requires a person who can make government and legislation work. I have proved I can make it work. I believe I can restore the confidence of the American people in government and bring to the country what is needed at a time of decision.

Beech-Nut Caveat Sparks Skepticism By FRANCES CERRA The manufacturer of Beech-

Consumer Notes

Nut baby foods recently mailed a flyer to 760,000 mothers warning them about "some potential dangers" of homemade baby food, including the possibility of poisoning. The flyer was sent, according to the company's "Those words should stick in his throat," said Roberta B. Wieloszynski, director of the City Consumer Affairs Unit in Syracuse "The Beech-Nut flyer is an obvious attempt to use medical mumbo-jumbo to scare mothers away from a safe and economical alternative to the processed products that Beech-Nut manufacturers and sells." The mailing that contained the flyer also included coupons.

Mrs. Wieloszynski added that her office had issued à formal complaint against the company, Baker/Beech-Nut of Canajoharie, N.Y., charging violation of that 'city's consumer-protection code. In a prepared statement, Frank C. Nicholas, president of Baker/Beech-Nut, said that the company was standing by its statements and that "we felt we had an obligation to alert moth### ers to the potential hazard of these homemade items." 'Reets a Problem'

One "danger" of homemade baby food mentioned in the Beech-Nut flyer was a condition called methemoglobinemia. "Cases of methemoglobinemia have been reported medical literature from the feeding of home-prepared spinach puree, carrot soup and carrot juice," the flyer said. "Beets may also be a Methemoglobinemia is a condition in which the oxygen-carrying capacity of an infant's blood is interfered with because of the consumption of large amounts of nitrates, which are naturally found in spinach, beets and certain other vegetables.

Under questioning by the Syracuse Consumer Affairs Unit, Beech-Nut said that it knew of no cases of this condition in the United States attributed to the use of homemade baby foods. The company, however, referred to an Oct. 29, 1975, syndicated column by the nutritionist Dr. Jean Mayer that referred to a few cases of the condition reported in Europe. These, apparently, were due to the use of vegetables grown in overferti-lized, nitrate-rich ground. Dr. Frank Oski, director of the department of pediatrics at the Upstate Medical Center, told the Syracuse unit that "The risk of methemoglobinemia from home-

Sterilization Unneeded George Pollak, head of Consumers Union's foods division, said that the environment in which a baby ate was not sterile—the spoon and dish, for example, are not sterilized—but that sterilization, in any case, was not normally necessary.

"Most of the bacteria in our environment are harmless." he said. Also, when it tested baby foods for an article that appeared in last September's issue of Consumer Reports Magazine, Consumers Union found insects, rodent hairs and enamel paint chips in many of the samples, in-cluding several made by

As for the nutritional "danger," Mr. Pollak said that in every case the baby food that Consumers Union had made itself, from ingredients bought locally, was more nutritious than the respond to this, a spokesman for Beech-Nut offered as support for the company's position a 1949 study done at the University of California at Berkeley. Follow-Up Repairs

A recent New York Times series on auto repair reported that of 24 repair shops asked to fix a car with a minor and easily detectable transmission fault, 13 either completely misdiagnosed the problem or performed or recom-mended expensive and unnecessary work. Two of the 13 were official Automobile Club of New York stations authorized to do AAA tow-

A spokesman for the club said that as a result of the series, one of the shops, Letizia Brothers, of 405 East 76th Street, Manhattan, had been "warned that his contract with us is in jeopardy." According to the Times series, Letizia had recommended a that a new transmission and converter, a related part, be installed in a test car that in reality needed only a small clip to make the transmission operate properly again. The new transmission would have cost $345. The owner of the shop explained that mistakes hap-

The other shop, Carion Auto Repair, 431 West 16th Street, "has been spoken to" but not formally warned, according to the club's spokesman. At Carjon, according the series, a mechanic found nothing wrong with the transmission, but recomowner of Carion explained that the shop did not road-test cars because of insurance restrictions, and that a mechanic believed that one of the wheels on the car was locking. The automobile club's spokesman said the decision to cancel a contract with authorized station was be based on "a judgment made by the club considering all factors involved." One factor, he said, is the number complaints received against a shop. 25,000 Calls in 1975

Through November 1975, he said, there were 177 complaints against Letizia, 52 of which concerned repair problems. The other complaints dealt with such things as delays in service. Letizia handled about 25,000 calls for service last year, he said.
There were 183 complaints against Carjon, he said, with 86 of these dealing with repairs. Carjon handled 17,000

Calls for service.

Asked how these complaint rates compared with those of the three other authorized A.A.A. stations in Manhattan, the spokesman said that one of the others was higher by several tenths of 1 per cent and the two others were lower by several tenths. "More important than the number of complaints is the type," he said. "If a bad pattern develops, a station's contract may be canceled."

Savings Certificates A regulation recently adopted by the New York State Banking Board will require that banks that automatically renew a long-term savings certificate pay the highest permissible interest rate on the renewal.

The regulation takes effect in February.

William Volckhausen, special counsel to the State Banking Superintendent, said the new regulation was designed to protect the consumer who either ignored or did not receive a notice from a bank that a savings certificate was maturing and would automatically be renewed unless the depositor acted. Under the old state regulation. if the original certificate paid 6 percent interest, the bank could renew it at that rate even though it was then paying 6½ percent on new certificates of the same size and maturity.

The policies of the past have threatened the fiscal survival of the State, its public authorities, and its local governments. Recent events have brought into clear focus the fragile nexus of fiscal insterdependence that links all levels and agencies of the public sector in New York-with each other and with the national Government and capital markets. We have seen how a crisis in one city, in one authority, can endanger all the others and undermine the credit of the state itself. We have learned that the soundness of the state's own finances is the cornerstone of the entire

Bear in mind that the problems we have struggled with over the past year have never been faced by any other state. With no precedents to guide us, we have broken new ground.

We still have difficult problems before us. We shall face them and we shall overcome them. This much is certain: with this budget we can put our house in order. I shall not be content until we have fin### ished the job. Tests for Budget

Central to this goal is a sound state budget. The budget for 1976-77 must pass four tests, It must:

The credibly balanced; ¶Forestall future tax increases by cutting the expenditure base to stay within recurring revenues;

GEnsure that the temporary surcharges on business enacted last month expire as scheduled before they depress the state's economy; Control debt issuance by the state and its public authorities. This budget meets these tests.

It achieves a $594 million reduction in baseline spending and recommends no new taxes

For the first time since 1941-42, expenditures for the operation of state departments and agencies will fall below the prior year's level. For the first time since 1943-44, expenditures for local assistance will decrease below the prior year's level. This absolute reduction in these two principal categories of state spending means that we have more than offset the cost increases built into the state expenditure base, such as those for fuel, food, and inescapable commitments to health and public safety.

For the past three years state ex-penditures have risen nearly $1 billion annually. In 1976-77 the decreases in State Purposes and Local Assistance, combined with an unavoidable increase in debt service and pension costs, will produce an increase of only one-tenth that amount—$106 million.

We will curb the growth in state spending because we have honored the pledge made one year ago to review every state program. Of each program we have asked:

¶ls it working?

Thoes it meet essential needs? How does it relate to the equivalent efforts of other states? Can we afford it?

ult is that this budget reduces the expenditure base for state operations by $223 million. We are going further than simply eliminating those programs that do not meet essential needs or do not work. We are asking for difficult sacrifices: we have proposed a wage freeze for state employees and we are cutting back a number of useful programs that we simply cannot with you. According to the latest available statistics, combined state and local government spending per capita is higher in New York than in any other state, save one-Alaska. State spending in New York also is high in relation to the national average, not because we spend so much on our own programs but because the level of support we give our local governments is the highest in the country. After receipt and expenditure of Federal and state aid. local governments account for three-quarters of all public spending in New York, while the state itself accounts for only one-quarter. In no other state is this différence so pronounced.

Similarly, state employees constitute only a small fraction of the total public workforce in New York. Indeed, the number of state employees as a percentige of the total population is well below the national average. The percentage of local employees is the highest in the

Reduced State Aid

I call attention to these relationships because I want to make it plain to you that balancing this budget without new taxes inevitably requires reductions in major programs of state aid to local governments. These include Medicaid. chool aid, and the state's own revenue sharing program.

Let me assure you, however, that even with the implementation of these reductions, New York will lead the nation in both the amount and the percentage of its revenues that it shares with localities. The decrease in local assistance contained in this Budget represents less than two percent of the $20 billion that local governments in this state spend each year.

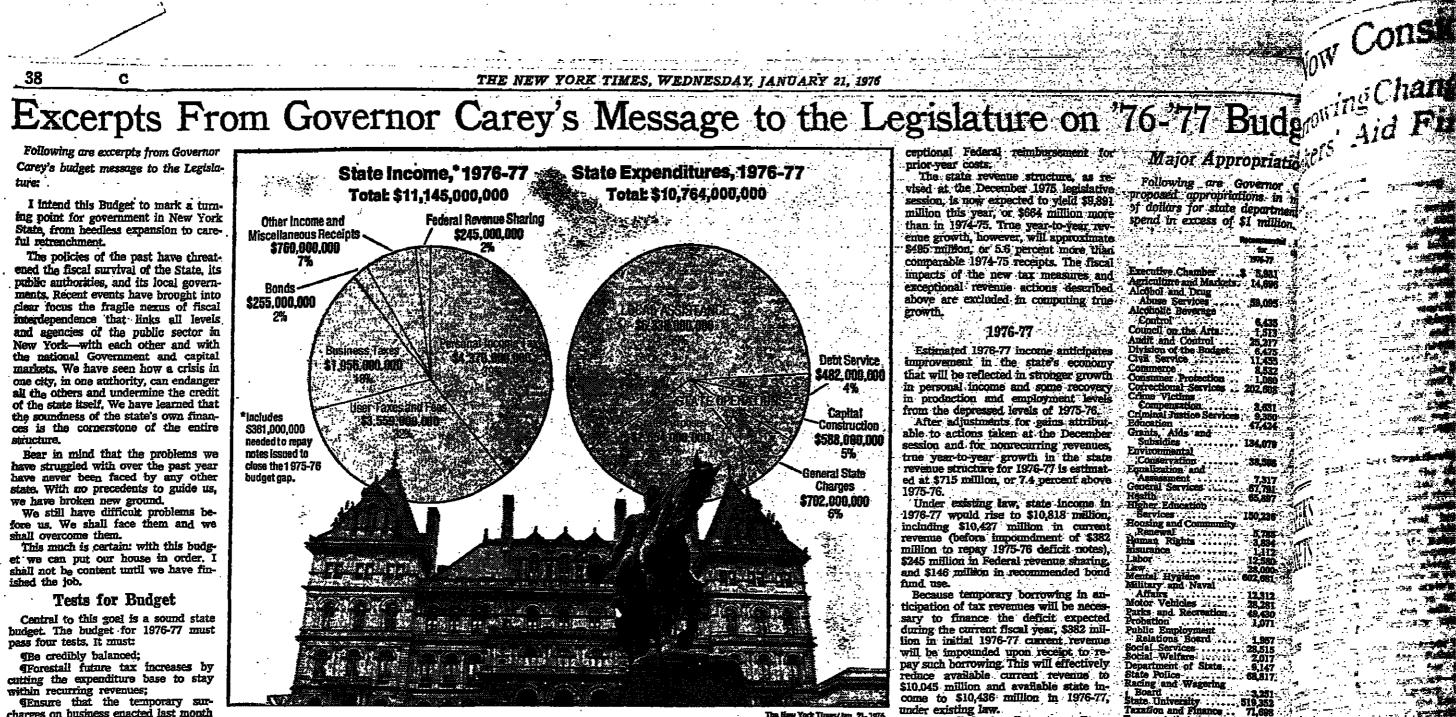

It is vital that your two Houses act promptly and decisively on these recomfiscal stability and credibility once and for all. And we must achieve all this in a timely manner for the following ¶Local governments must be able to base their budgets on hard realities, not uncertainties:

¶State departments need to know what will be continued and what will be eliminated so that they can reorder vital

Public authorities must adjust their operations to reflect the rigorous oversight and limitations this budget pro-

kets must recognize—well before the ture and Markets;

seasonal borrowings on which all units of New York government depend—that our finances are in order, our credit is sound, and we are entitled to access to their resources.

The budget I am presenting today demands that every state agency and every local government and school district muster the resolve and discipline necessary to alter those practices that have brought the public sector of this state to its greatest crisis since the

But I do not want you to think that this budget contains only cutbacks. It marks a shift in the way the state govemment will meet the human needs that are the primary reason for its existence. I want to see less money for the large institutions that are the bastions of buresucracy, and and more support for individual opportunity. This is why the main burden of the reductions in this budget falls on public institutions, not on private citizens.

This budget does not curtail services to the mentally disabled; rather, it expands them and establishes the framework for more effective care. This budget reduces spending for state facilities and increases direct support for dependent individuals that will enable them to live and work in their home communities. My recommendations for the Department of Mental Hygiene, the Division for Youth, and the office of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services all reflect this philosophy.

This budget marks the end of more state support for institutions of higher education. Instead, it emphasizes increased support for individual students.

This budget requires that two other large public institutional sectors-local school districts and medical care facilities-rely on better management and more effective service delivery, not on unending increases in state aid.

Programs Reduced

This budget reflects the reality that New York can no longer support programs at expenditure levels far higher than those in other states. Therefore we will not continue to: .

Provide more optional Medicald rvices than other states: Support school district spending at levels 60 percent above the national Devote twice as much staff as any other state to reviewing compliance with minimum wage standards; ¶Support National Guard systems to a greater extent than other states.

This Budget recognizes that programs that do not work must be eliminated. Therefore, it no longer supports: ¶Unnecessary residential drug abuse facilities: ¶Underutilized militia armories; ¶Overlapping hospital planning and review contracts;

G"No-show" and "no-do" commissions. This budget reduces public costs by making programs more self-supporting.

Therefore, it: Charges back to the racetracks certain costs of state supervision, including drug-testing and judging;

QOffsets part of the cost of state publications through the sale of advertising;

¶Increases professional licensing fees.

Programs Shifted

This budget does more with less. Therefore it:

TRedirects the programs of the Division for Youth to institutionalize only those who require a secure environment, and place those who can benefit into structured community programs—all at an overall lower cost than last year;

Merges the related activities of the state's alcohol and drug abuse programs, eliminating institutional facilities and expanding community alcoholism pro-

This Budget also contains reductions in worthwhile programs that we cannot afford. Therefore it:

¶Limits Medicaid support of hospitals and nursing homes; ¶Reduces allocations under the state's revenue sharing program:

¶Suspends one of the state's two town highway aid programs; ¶Proposes economies at the State University and community colleges; TReduces Bundy aid to private institutions of higher education; GReduces operating aid for sewage treatment facilities: Will leave unstaffed new laboratory Most importantly, the capital mar- facilities for the Department of AgriculGFinances highway maintenance at less than optimum levels.

These and the many other reductions I have recommended will result in a $594 million reduction in baseline expenditures. Of that amount, $371. million will be realized in Local Assistance Fund spending, including:

4$132 million in welfare spending: 4$110 million in state revenue sharing ellocations;

4$37 million in all other programs. State Purposes Fund spending will be reduced $161 million, including:

¶$117 milion in program reductions;

¶$44 million through attrition and the percent reduction-in-force. Capital Construction Fund spending will be lowered $62 million, including: ¶$38 million in reduced expenditures for construction and repair of state buildings and facilities; $24 million in transportation, highway construction, maintenance facilities, and other programs. These reductions will also mean that New York will have reversed the trend of a growing bureaucracy. In January 1975 there were 184,012 full-time permanent State employees. In Jenuary 1976 there were 5,566 fewer. With this Budget there will be a two-year reduction of approximately 13,000 full-time filled permanent positions in the State's

The Two-Year State Fiscal Problem

state faced a gap of over $1.6 billion during the 15-month period ending March 31, 1977.

Legislative enactment of taxes plus monthly payment of the sales tax by large vendors reduced that problem by $680 million. In addressing the remaining problem of $922 million, I have relied most heavily on expenditure cuts, to the extent of some $594 million. In addition, I have renewed by request that you act promptly on the bill before you to establish a new lottery so that the state can receive the full $60 million in revenue reflected in this budget.

After all these steps, the budget still required $268 million to achieve balance. To meet this requirement I am proposing a series of steps, including nonrecurring income measures totaling $235 million.

The 1975-76 deficit is now estimated at $449 million. Income is projected to total $10,209 million (including $360 million from the taxes and other revenue measures enacted in December), while expenditures are estimated at $10.658 million. I propose to draw upon the liquid assets of the tax stabilization reserve funds, estimated at $67 million, as a partial means of funding this deficit, estimated at $382 million, must be financed in March by the issuance of tax anticipation notes.

The State Comptroller will repay these notes, early in 1976-77, by impounding tax revenues as they are received. This will have the effect of diminishing available resources for financing the 1976-77 budget. In the absence of the cuts and revenue-producing measures I am proposing, the gap for 1976-77 would be $922 Available income would grow to $10,436 million and expenditures would grow to $11,358 million. As I stated in December, I will rely orimarily on $594 million in expenditure cuts to close the 1976-77 gap.

leaving a remaining requirement of $328 million.

Nonrecurring Income

Since we face a nonrecurring charge of $382 million to redeem the notes issued to finance the 1975-76 deficit, it is appropriate to rely upon nonrecurring sources of income to help close the 1976-77 gap. The temporary surcharges on corporations and banks enacted by the Legislature in December will yield an estimated $120 million in 1976-77. I propose to supplement this with an additional $235 million in onetime-only income measures to meet this one-time-only expenditure requirement. These measures are:

¶$110 million from unused full-faithand-credit bond authorizations; 4$60 million from reform of state laws governing the disposition of abandoned property; 9850 million from requiring utilities and transmission companies to make estimated tax payments four times a quirements for other business enter-

9$15 million from a transfer of available funds in the Outdoor Recreation Development Account. To close the remaining $93 million gap, I propose the following additional measures to augment state income in 1976-77: 4$60 million from a substantially revamped State Lottery; $20 million from the extension of the existing 21/2 percent personal income tax surcharge; $8 million from updating professional licensing and other miscellaneous fees; $5 million from corrective legislation to revise the state share of the takeout from exotic wagers at harness race-

In combination with the $120 million authorized in December, these measures will bring nonrecurring income in this budget to $355 million, while the nonrecurring charge for redeeming deficit notes is $382 million.

In other circumstances, I would contimue to oppose drawing upon the unused bond authorizations. But I am a realist. The Legislature does not share my perspective on their use. Therefore, I am constrained to remove this matter of contention between us, so that it no longer diverts attention from the graver policy issues that confront us. Use of these funds is acceptable be-

They will offset an equivalent nonrecurring expenditure; and new controls on public authority, debt, this budget diminishes overall state reliance on debt financing. With these measures this budget is in balance. Income and expenditures will each total $10,764 million in 1976-77. Since this budget cuts base expenditures to remain within recurring revenues, we can look forward now and in future years to responsible budget balance. . However, I must emphasize that present and future balance depends upon decisive legislative action on my recommended expenditure reductions. If your Houses do not approve these reductions-or fail to make alternative reductions that have a comparable long-term effect—you will, by your inaction, make higher taxes necessary.

Income Outlook for 1975-76 and 1976-77 1975-76

Total state income for 1975-76 is now estimated at $10,209 million, composed of $9,891 million in current revenues, $235 million in Federal revenue sharing, and $83 million in bond funds.

Estimates of current revenue were revised downward slightly, by $28 million, from the December estimate, due to the somewhat disappointing trend of sales tax and business tax collections in December, together with the Legislature's failure to act on legislation that would have permitted early initiation of a revamped lottery. The estimated use of bond funds has been reduced by some $7 million from the December estimate as a result of a decline in estimated bondable capital construction expenditures. These re-estimates, however, are minor compared to the $360 million net gains in income, included in the current revenue figure shown above, that will result from legislative actions taken in December 1975 that: Increased the net income tax rate applicable to general business corporations from 9 percent to 10 percent, and the related minimum tax from $125 to $250, effective January 1, 1975;

Increased the net income tax rate applicable to banks from 8 percent to percent, effective January 1, 1975; Ilmposed a temporary surcharge of 20 percent on general business corporation taxes for taxable years beginning in 1975:

Imposed a temporary surcharge of 30 per cent on banking institution taxes for 1975 and 1976; ¶Revised the formula for allocating net income of multistate corporations to benefit New York-based business: ¶Provided an employment incentive tax credit measured by increased production investment:

Required monthly remission of sales and use taxes by major vendors. Offsetting the impact of these measures on total 1975-76 revenue growth is the relatively greater amount of nonrecurring income received in 1974-75, including drawdowns from the personal

$495 million, or 5.6 percent more than comparable 1974-75 receipts. The fiscal impacts of the new tax measures and exceptional revenue actions described above are excluded in computing true

1976-77

Estimated 1976-77 income anticipates improvement in the state's economy that will be reflected in stronger growth in personal income and some recovery. in production and employment levels from the depressed levels of 1975-76. After adjustments for gains attributable to actions taken at the December session and for nonrecurring revenues, true year-to-year growth in the state revenue structure for 1976-77 is estimated at $715 million, or 7.4 percent above 1975-76.

Under existing law, state income in 1976-77 would rise to $10,818 million, including $10,427 million in current revenue (before impoundment of $382 million to repay 1975-76 deficit notes). $245 million in Federal revenue sharing, and $146 million in recommended bond Because temporary borrowing in anticipation of tax revenues will be necessary to finance the deficit expected during the current fiscal year, $382 initlion in initial 1976-77 current revenue will be impounded upon receipt to re-pay such borrowing. This will effectively duce available current revenue to $10,045 million and available state income to $10,436 million in 1976-77, under existing law.

I have relied primarily on expenditure cuts to balance this budget. To provide the $328 million in additional funding required, I am proposing the following

Quoused Bond Authorizations: $110

¶Abandoned Property: $60 million. Under the Abandoned Property Law, unclaimed property held by banks, public utilities, life insurance companies and general business corporations remains dormant for an extended period before it is required to be turned over to the State Comptroller as abandoned property. Legislation submitted with this budget will reduce the dormancy

Thew Lottery: $60 million. Legislation before your Houses will substantially revamp the State Lottery program and, to safeguard that operation, will house it in the State Department of Taxation and Finance;

9Corporation and Utilities Taxes: $50 million. This budget will place utilities and transmission companies on the same payment schedule es general business corporations and banks by requiring estimated tax payments four times a year;

Extension of Personal Income Tax Surcharge: $20 million. Legislation submitted with this budget will continue the existing 21/2 percent personal income tax surcharge; Transfer from Outdoor Recreation Development Account: $15 million. Surpluses built up in this account will be transferred to the General Fund; Professional Licensing Fees: $8 million. Legislation submitted with this budget will relate these fees more closely to regulatory and service costs; Pari-mutuel Tax: $5 million. Corrective legislation submitted with this budget will revise the pari-mutuel tax on exotic wagers at certain harness racetracks

In accord with my recommendation during the 1975 regular session, legisla-tion is also being submitted to provide for more equitable sales tax treatment of medical supplies, appliances, and equipment. This budget reflects a firstyear revenue loss of $3 million under that proposal. Total available state income in the coming fiscal year is therefore estimated at $10,764 million, consisting of $10,-263 million in available current revenue, $245 million in Federal revenue sharing, and $256 million in recommended bond fund use.

Expenditure Outlook For 1975-76 and 1976-77

Total state expenditures for 1975-76 are now estimated at $10,658 million. a slight decrease of $26 million from the previous estimate published in De-

The decrease is primarily the result of the austerity measures that I imposed last month. These measures included: ¶A 3 percent reduction-in-force, to be completed by February 29; More stringent application of the hiring freeze;

TReductions in overtime costs and aves-of-absence; Implementation of a no-exception, computer-enforced expenditure ceiling system: ¶Restrictions on the use of funds for travel and publications;

Simitations on the purchase of equipment A freeze on land acquisition; Closer monitoring of construction expenditures, including those for design, plan preparation, and on-site supervision.

1976-77

The expenditure recommendations in my 1976-77 Executive Budget complete the first phase of my program to impose fiscal discipline upon the state. If these recommendations are not increased by the Legislature, fiscal sta-bility for the remainder of the decade can be achieved.

Such stability would offer a sharp and welcome contrast to the conditions that characterized the first half of the decade; in four of the six fiscal years from 1970-71 through 1975-76, the state experienced budget deficits. For the past 20 years, the state has been subject to recurring rounds of tax increases that have contributed to erosion of our economic base.

To achieve fiscal stability we will have to arrest expenditures to overcome the momentum of built-in cost spirals that have devoured normal revenue growth in every Executive Budget submitted during the last three decades.

I sold fovernor cases a mextremely significant and positive development in an increasingly urgent search for a solution to the problems of both the agencies and the states own borrowing needs. "This is just terrific," said peter C. Goldmark Jr., the State buying state-agency obligations with the nearly $8 billion in pension funds he controls. His offer today was regarded here as an extremely significant and positive development in an increasingly urgent search for a solution to the problems of both the agencies and the states own borrowing needs. "This is just terrific," said peter C. Goldmark Jr., the State Budget Director. "I can't tell you how good this is. The significance is not that the problem is solved yet, but that we'll all be working together on it."

DATSUN B-210. MPG-CITY.

The '76 B-210, most economical Datsun of them all! Three models offer a surprising amount of comfort and luxury. And a 1400cc high cam engine that makes this a really powerful economy car. (*EPA dynamometer estimate. Manual transmission. Actual MPG may be more or less, depending on the condition of your car and how you drive.)

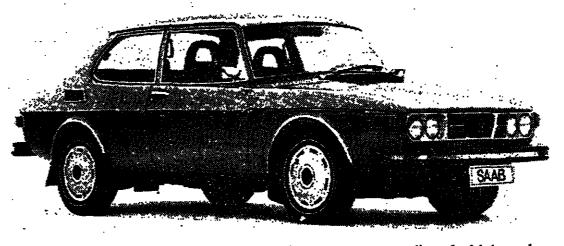

See one of the 57 NY, NJ or Fairfield County, Conn. Dats un Dealers

The Saab Philosophy, No. 2 in a Series:

"WE BELIEVE HOW FAST A CAR GOES SLOW IS AS IMPORTANT AS HOW FAST A CAR GOES FAST."

When you're heading down the highway at 55 mph, you probably don't think about how fast you can stop. Until somebody stops in front of you.

We thought about it, however, when we first designed the Saab. And that's why we equipped it with big, power-assisted disc brakes on all four wheels (not just two like a lot of cars).

Of course, braking is only important if you're going, so we gave the Saab a strong, two-liter, fuel-injected, overhead cam engine to get it going.

And to make the driver and passengers feel even more secure, the Saab has front-wheel drive, rackand-pinion steering and roll cage construction.

To really appreciate the Saab Philosophy, however, you must drive the result, the new Saab 99 GL. It will make you a believer...fast.

IT'S WHAT A CAR SHOULD BE.

There are more than 375 Saab dealers nationwide. Overseas delivery available.

games last year, the most last six years. There had been victories in his four years in the major leagues, has agreed to a contract with the Mets for 1976. Terms were not announced, but the left-handed pitcher is be-lieved to be in the $75,-000-$80,000 range. Matlack, who celebrated his 26th birthday on Monday, posted a 16-12 won-lost record, 3.33 earned-run average and was the winning pitcher in the All-Star game.

The left-hander might have had an even better season if not for an accident in which he suffered lacerations and a mild concussion on Aug. 6. Matlack won only three games after that and did not have a victory after Aug. 29.

The mets also announced the signing of Ron Hodges, a catcher who spent most of last season with Tidewater in the International League, and two rookie infielders. Ken Perry, a second base-man, and Randy Trapp, a third baseman, both of whom spent last year in the Mets' farm system.

His only college coaching experience was two years at the University of Cincinnati. He said he had come to verbal agreement, on a one-year-at-a-time basis, to try to turn the Owls' losing football program around. He provided the only levity of the news conference by saying:

"When they said they'd name their stadium after me I couldn't turn it down."

The New York Baseball Writers have announced the major award recipients they will honor at their 53d annual dinner and show at the Americana Feb. 1. Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds will receive the Sid Mercer Player of the Year Award. Luis Tiant, winner of two games for the losing Boston Red Sox in the World Series, will receive the Babe Ruth award. Joe Torre of the Mets will receive the Ben Epstein Good Guy award. ## Angie Doesn't Believe Ali's Firsties

AMI BEACH, Fia., Jan. 20 - Angelo Dundee has almost 20 years to the care and feeding of Mud Ali, and if he esn't rank today as the greatest. uthority on the heavyweight champion of the world, is the second greatest. Both have aged since Anide-the-acquaintance of a 16-year-old from Louisimed Cassius Clay, and both have grown — the in size and wealth, the trainer in wisdom. If there igle creature who knows more than Angelo about the mind and body and spirit of the noted. Thespian, it is Muhammad Ali. Among the many things Angelo has learned is that he must never believe Muhammad's firsties.

innes "And sometimes not his seconds and thirdies," he said today. "The first time he says something." Angle said, "he's just trying it out for Like one time we went to Los Angeles for a fight hotel rooms weren't ready and the gym wasn't b. We're going home, Mohammad said, and started in the car for the airport. Don Fraser, who was g the fight, almost had a heart attack. I said, 'the to three days you're just going to loosen up and it don't need a ring because you're not going to ad you don't need a bag because you're not going to a you'don't need a bag because you're not going th it. He said, 'Alright,' and that was all, but Fraser that had a heart attack."

igele said he wasn't planning to go to Las Vegas to bege Foreman box Ron Lyle Saturday. "Foreman 10 hayo Lyle," he said. "He can reach Lyle with and with the bomb. But of course, you never know in Foreman's head, and that Lyle is a big guy, too.

The Brussels Sprout

As for Ali, he's gonna be fine. I say he's gonna be s he still has a month to get ready for the Lion of a. He knows when he's got to start. He just came. four Las Vegas where he went for a roast and he own in Washington where they had some sort of for his birthday on Jan. 17, his 34th. He asked me phone, When you coming up here? and I told him, & know when you need me and I'll be there. He's camp up in Pennsylvania." he Lion of Flanders is Jean-Pierre Coopman, a large als sprout who has a tryst with Ali in San Juan, P.R., O: There are five licensed heavyweights in Belgium ie Lion is their champion. hope he's no lion," Angle said. "Whenever some tells me this will be nocontest I say. Thank you very we appreciate any courtesies. It's always the no-3 that give us problems. Chuck Wepner was nothing. and he had my guy on the floor. Ken Norton was nobody and he broke Muhammad's jaw. That German Midlenberger [Karl Midlenberger] was nothing. Tough fight.

It's the unknown quantities that worry me. We can look at films and figure out a Foreman, but we got no measure for the Lion. All we got to compare him with is Charley Devil Green. We knew he kayoed Green. But comparisons, how you going to compare anybody with Mu-hammad? There's only one like him in the world.

"In 1953, two years before the Rome Olympics, he told the he was going to win the Olympics and become heavy-weight champion of the world. He wasn't even a heavyweight then. How come you never approach me? he asked me. I said, Tve got a gym down on Fifth Street in Miami Beach. The termites are into it pretty good, but you've welcome there any time. He said, I got people offering me Cadillacs and all you offer is a gym. I fold him. That's my business. I'm in the boxing business, not the automo-

Muhammad Is Pliable

A sudden memory made Angelo laugh. Fifteen years ago," he said. "Remember 15 years ago? You saw him knock out, some garbage collector down here sad didn't think much of him. You came in the dress-ing room, you and Al Buck and Frank Graham, and be locked for you guys to start taking notes. He didn't see a pencil and he was tongue-tied." il and he was tongue-tied."

When last seen, the champion was resting in his hotel.

in Manila the day after his fierce third fight with Joe Frazier. He hurt all over, he was emotionally drained and unatterably weary. That was Oct. I and he didn't want to think of fighting again, though he knew the idea of retirement would lose its charm.

"That's just an emotional feeling you get," Angelo said now. "It's like you wrote for 48 hours straight. What am I doing? you'd say. I must be out of my mind. He wasn't goma pack if in. Never believe his firsties. And believe me, Frazier will never look as good as he did that

How about Angie's guy? The fight took as much out

"Unh-unh, he is pliable. He's got recuperative powers like you never saw. His way of life is remarkable. The secret is, he truly enjoys what he does. And that's why, in these years, I never felt like walking away. With him, the scene always changes. He'-the easiest fighter I ever worked with never a moment of aggrevation. In understand him. I know what turns him on. Some fighters tire of the drudgery. To him, it's dynamite."

Reduces Rosters

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20-Clarence CampbeVI, the league president, thought the move would strengthen the National Hockey League's saellite leagues took another blow today as the N.H.L. lowered players on a team's reserve

rors voted unanimously to require that franchises keep at least 24 players plus three goaltenders under contrac By next October, Campbell predicted numerous realign-ments and consolidations in the American and Central Leagues, both of which effec-tively keep the major

At one time, each N.H.L. franchise had its own minor league affiliat Now just two or three clubs operate with: their own farm teams, most are like Pittsburgh and Buffalo, which share sponsorship of the A.H.L.'s Hershey BGars' Next season, there could be cases of three N.H.I. teams sponsoring one minor league team, which would give those minor. teams more quality players and at the same time cuit N.H.L. expenses.

The aiking N.H.L. expansion teams and established clubs butted head to head today over a proposal that the 1976 intralesgue draft be reinsti-Continued on Page 44. Column 5

Progress Is Made in Baseball Suit

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20 (UPI) — With agreement reached on nearly 80 per cent of the 107 findings of fact presented by major league baseball owners in their suit supporting the reserve clause, a Federal judge today or-dered testimony to be pre-sented next Monday to settle the remaining contentions. United States Judge John Oliver said he hoped to have a decision by Jan. 29 on the owners' challenge to the power of arbitrator Peter Seitz to declare Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Dave McNally of the Montreal Expos free The judge spent most of yesterday and today in his chambers, helping attorneys for the owners and players reach agreement over the 107 findings presented by the owners. The parties agreed on all 18 findings submitted by attorneys for the players.

As well as setting the dates for bral arguments, Oliver ordered the owners' attorneys to file a new set of findings of fact by Friday, which would contain only the mat-ters that were challenged by attorneys for the players.

The main problems concerned discussions between players representatives and owners during three 1969 meetings held to investigate the reserve system and dis-cussions held white negotiating the reserve sections of the 1970 and 1973 contracts. Oliver ordered all notes

Chargers Drop Svare As General Manager

today as general manager of the San Diego Chargers, a post he held since 1971, and he immediately blamed a psychiatrist's book about him. In New Orleans, Hank Stram signed a $1 millionplus, five-year contract as head coach of the Saints.]

The book about Svare, still unpublished, was written by Dr. Arnold Mandell of the University of California at San Diego, whom Svare allowed to spend a season with the National Football League club two years ago.

In it Svare reportedly is described as bumbling and inept, and as taking orders from Eugene Klein, the Chargers' owner.

No successor was named for the former New York Giants' linebacker and defen-sive assistant, who had been head coach for both the Chargers and the Los An-

Svare was named head coach of the Rams in 1962, at the age of 31, but was discharged after compiling a 4-31-3 won-lost-tied record

In San Diego, he became general manager in 1971 and took over from Sid Gillman as head coach with four games left in that year's

Svare resigned as the Chargers coach on Nov. 5, 1973, reverting to general manager after eigh players and team officials were fined a total of $25,000 for violat-ing the N.F.L.'s drug policies and after the Chargers had suffered their worst seasons

Dr. Arnold Mandell's book, which has destroyed my credibility in the National Football Leage and in football in general." Svare said in a statement.

Some, Ilke Bill Bradley of the Knicks, Geoff PGtrie of the Portland Trail Blazers, John Hummer of the Seattle SuperSonics and Brian Taylor of the Nets, chose instead shorts, jerseys and basketball shoes as their uniform of work. They have made pro basketball their careers.

Why so many Princeton men playing pro basketball? "You don't have to play in the Atlantic Coast Conference or the Pac-8 to make it in pro basketball," said Petrie, the Trail Blazers'

Knicks at Madison Square Garden. "Princeton basketball is as good as you will find. They never get the five or six quality players, can't play freshmen or make a lot of noise recruiting but Pete Carril gets the job done quietly. He is a great coach and pros have come to inow that when a player leaves Princeton, ht he is wellschooled in the game."

Still, in the spring of 1970 when a list of likely firstround National Basketball Association draft choices was compiled, Petrie was not mentioned, And, when Portland made him its top draft choice, the reaction of Trail "Geoff Blazer fans was,

Indiana Holds Off Purdue By 71-67

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Jan. 19 (AP)—Top-ranked Indiana, led by Scott May's 32 points, survived a Purdue rally tonight and beat the Boilermakers, 71-67, to take the Big Ten basketball lead.

The Hoosiers, unbeaten in six conference games and 15-0 over all, held an 11point lead in the second half, but Purdue's center Tom Scheffler, and Kyle Macy and Eugene Parker, guards, led the comeback.

The Boilermakers chipped away the lead as the Hoosiers had trouble scoring. Purdue led twice by a point. But the 6-foot-7-inch May put Indiana back on top to stay, 61-60, with 6 minutes 30 seconds to go.

Two minutes later, Indiana went into a semi-stall, A layup by May gave Indiana a 5-point lead, 67-62, and Purdue had to foul in a lastminute attempt to regain Indiana's final 4 points came at the free-throw line in the final 18 seconds. Purdue, now 4-1 in the Big Ten and 9-5 over all, was led by Parker with 14 points, Walter Jordan with 13 and Macy with 11.

World Curling Slated at Duluth

TORONTO (AP) — Organizers of the world curling championships have annunced the schedule for the 1976 championships at Duluth. Minn. The 10-nation round-robin competition is scheduled for March 22 to 26. The semifinals will be played on Sat-urday, March 27, and the final on March 28.

The organizers announced that the modified playoff sys-tem introduced this year will be used again. The system calls for any rink undefeated after the round-robin to be given a bye into the final and the second and third rinks to play off in the semifinal. But if no rink is undefeated in the round-robin, then the top four rinks will play off in the semifinals.

Countries entered in the 1976 championships are the defending champion, Switzer-land, Canada, the United States, Sweden, Norway, Italy, Scotland, West Germany, France and Denmark.

Indoor Meet Set

In Speed-Skating CHICAGO (UPI)-The first world indoor speed-skating championships sanctioned by the International Skating Union will be held next spring at the University of Illinois rink at Champaign-Urbana. The meet, set for April 9-11, is expected to bring together some of the world's fastest skaters. Competition will be "pack style," as op-posed to the European method of racing against a clock, with separate divisions for men and women. The age groups tentatively set include the senior division, 19 years old and over; juniors, for ages 16, 17 and 18; and novice, for ages 13, 14 and 15.

McHugh Resigns New Haven Post

WEST HAVEN, Conn. (AP) -Coach Joe McHugh, after posting only two victories in three varsity football seasons at the University of New Haven, has resigned. He gave no reason.

McHugh, 43 years old, coached New Haven three seasons when it had a club team. In its first two seasons on the varsity level. New Haven had won-lost records of 0-8 and 0-9.

The team lost its first game this season, then beat Curry, 13-7. The Chargers finished the season with a 2-7 record.

Like a pebble making everwidening circles on a glassy lake, an isolated tidbit of trade news today set the rumors circulating that yet another Ranger deal was in the offing.

News that the Vancouver Canucks had acquired 24year-old Curt Ridley (at one time a Ranger goaltender) from the Atlanta Flames in exchange for a first-round draft choice stimulated speculation that Vancouver was ready to deal with the Rangers for a badly needed center. The Rangers would get Gary Smith to alleviate their injury problems in the net.

Angels Promote

Team's Trainer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) --The California Angels have promoted Freddie Frederico to traveling secretary after 14 years as the team's trainer.

Frederico, the last remaing on-the-field member of the original 1961 Apgels, will also act as trainer on the road.

The team's former traveling secretary, Ed Munson, was promoted to director of sales and marketing. Frederico was a trainer with minor league teams in Seattle from 1949 to 1960.

Oregon to Study Athletics' Future

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 20 (UPI)—The Oregon Board of Higher Education voted today to make a study of inter-collegiate athletics, including whether they should be con-tinued competitively and at what level at the state's three major universities.

Chancellor Roy E. Lieualien recommended the action because of the "severe problems which affect the departments of intercollegiate athletics, especially at our universities—the University of Oregon, Oregon State University and Portland State University."

Among the problems/cited by Lieuellen were "the increasing difficulty experienced by the state system's three universities in maintaining balanced stilletic department budgets; the almost chronic problem of competing effectively in football and basketball; the uncertain future of the nonincome producing sports, and the growing role of women's intercollegiate athletics."

Filipinos to Boycott Softball Training MANILA, Jan. 20 (UPI)—The Philippines will boycott the fourth world men's softball championship in New Zealand starting Jan. 29 to protest South Africa's participation and demonstrate its "unswerving stand against apartheid." Isidro Rodriguez, president of the Philippine Softball Association, cabled the Manilan Foreign office with his decision to boycott the New Zealand tournament. "We abide by the stand taken by the Philippine Government not to/join any tournaments in which South Africa

CHARLESTON, W.Va., Jan. 20 (UPI)-Pittsburgh and Dallas electrified more than America's football fans Sunday -they also helped send West Virginia's power consumption to a record high. A spokesman for Appalachian Power Ccimpany said today that the demand for electricity on Super Bowl Sunday was the highest in West Virginia of any Sunday in the utility's history.

During Sunday, the utility noted more than 70,995,000 kilowatt hours of electricity were used by its customers. "This was due to extremely cold temperatures throughout our service area, and possibly the Super Bowl game on television," the spokesman said.

Debate Over 'Market Index' Funds

By ROBERT MEIZ

Critics of money managers' investment results sometimes argue that investors would do as well if they threw darts at the stock tables and bought the stocks they hap-pened to hit.

The latest variation of this thesis, which adopts the underlying premise that stocks advance and decline in a random manner, is that of market indexing.

The market indexer creates a "market fund" that is highly diversified in that it is patterned on, say, the Standard & Poor's 500 stock index "it the fund in executive." dex. If the fund is carefully created, the argument goes, the results of the portfolio would mirror that of the index itself.

Two University of Chicago law professors, John H.
Langbein and Richard A. Posner, have argued strenuously for such funds after conclud-ing that it is not only futlle to attempt to beat the market averages, including the S.&P. 500, but also unduly costly.

In discussing this view in he issue of the American ar Foundation's Research Journal published this month, they said that the movements of a portfolio consisting of only 50 carefully selected stocks would be 95 percent correlated with those of the S. & P. 500 but added that the portfolio would not suffice. Such a portfolio, they said, would, on average, provide a return differing from that of the S. & P. 500 by 4.5 percentage points. Thus, if the S. & P. 500 rose 10 percent in a given year, the 50-stock portfolio might well increase 14.5 percent or only

It would take a portfolio of 200 stocks to reduce that deviation to 1 percent, which may help explain why there are few such market funds in criticals. in existence. An article about the professors' study ap-peared in this space last Oct. 22. Curiously, there was little response from the mutual fund industry.

But there are a number mutual fund industry officials who believe the market fund theory is full of holes.

Townsend Brown 2d, portfolio manager of the Wood, Struthers & Winthrop Man-Strithers & Winthrop Management Corporation, a money management organization, commented that it was "beguiling" to contemplate a fund that was the "mathematical twin" of the S. & P. 500—but "absurd."

It is worth noting, he said that the market value of the 30 largest stocks in the index constitute roughly half the total value of that capital-Telephone, account for almost 12 percent of the index.

He noted, for example, that Martin Marietta, which was halfway down the list at 250th position last Sept. 30, represents a mere 0.07 percent of the index.

Mr. Brown assumes that all 500 stocks would be in-cluded, but his example indi-cating the role of Martin Marietta dramatizes the problem of creating even a much less complete money brown said, it is assumed the stocks would be purchased and held. On the contrary, he adds, since markets fluctuate, the fund would have to be switched as stocks rose and fell in rank. Otherwise, he says, performance would immediately differ from the desired relationship.

Such a money fund, he continued, would be a "broker's dream" offering the greatest excuse to churn accounts—buy and sell stocks

P. H. GLATFELTER COMPANY

NOTICE OF REDEMPTION OF 5% CONVERTIBLE PREFERENCE STOCK

Notice Is Hersey Given that all outstanding shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock of P. H. Glatfelter Company (the "Company") have been called for redemption and will be redeemed on February 20, 1976 (the "date fixed for redemption"), at the and will be redeemed on February 20, 1976 (the taste likes for redemption 7, at the redemption price of $51.00 per share plus an amount equal to the accrued and unpaid dividends thereon computed to the date fixed for redemption, payment of which will be made by Provident National Bank, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, upon presentation and surrender of the shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock to Provident National Bank, Corporate Trust Department, 17th and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Bank, Corporate Trust Department, 17th and Chestnitt Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19108 or Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company, Four New York Plaza, New York, N. Y. 10015, accompanied by proper instruments of assignment and transfer if payment is to be made to other than the registered holder. After the close of business on the date fixed for redemption, the shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock will no longer be convertible into the Common Stock of the Company, and from and after the date fixed for redemption, dividends on the shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock will cease to accrue.

Conversion of 5% Convertible Preference Stock into Common Stock

Each share of 5% Convertible Preference Stock is presently convertible into 1.8748 shares of Common Stock of the Company, but such right to convert will terminate at the close of business on February 20, 1976, the date fixed for redemption. Until such time, all holders of 5% Convertible Preference Stock have the right to convert their shares into shares of Common Stock of the Company upon aurrender of the shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock duly endorsed to the Company or in blank, at the offices of Provident National Bank, Corporate Trust Department, 17th and Chestaut Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103 or Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company, Four New York Plaza, New York N. Y. 10015, accompanied by written notice that the holder elects to convert his 5% Convertible Preference Stock and stating the name or names (with address) in which the Common Stock certificate is to be issued. No fractional shares are issuable upon conversion. In lieu of issuing fractional shares of Common Stock upon conversion; the Company will make payment for fractional shares in an amount equal to the same fraction of the fair market value per share of Common Stock, such fair market value to be computed as the mean between the highest and the In an amount equal to the same fraction of the last market value for same the Stock, such fair market value to be computed as the mean between the highest and the lowest selling price of the Common Stock on the American Stock Exchange on the day the 5% Convertible Preference Stock certificate is received for conversion. No adjustment will be made upon conversion of shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock for accrued dividends thereon.

OTHER IMPORTANT INFORMATION

For the convenience of the holders of shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock, the Company has made available a Letter of Transmittal which may be used (but is not required) to accompany the shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock surrendered for conversion or redemption. Copies of the Letter of Transmittal may be obtained from Provident National Bank, Corporate Trust Department, 17th and Chestaut Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103.

From January 1, 1975 through January 19, 1976, the prices at which the Common Stock sold on the American Stock Exchange ranged from a high of 34½ to a low of 18½. The last sale price of the Common Stock on the American Stock Exchange on January 19, 1976 was 30%. So long as the market price of the Common Stock is at least 27% per share, the holders of shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock, upon conversion, will receive Common Stock with a greater market value (with cash paid in lieu of fractional shares) than the cash which they would receive upon redemption.

paid in lieu of fractional shares) than the cash which they would receive upon redemption.

The Board of Directors has declared quarterly dividends of 62% per share and 50% per share on the 5% Convertible Preference Stock and the Common Stock, respectively, payable on February 1, 1976 to the holders of record on January 15, 1976. Holders of 5% Convertible Preference Stock who held such stock on January 15, 1976 are entitled to receive the dividend payable February 1, 1976 on the 5% Convertible Preference Stock, but are not entitled to receive the dividend payable February 1, 1976 on the Common Stock even if such shares are converted into shares of Common Stock. Holders of 5% Convertible Preference Stock who convert their shares prior to the close of business on February 13, 1976 will be entitled to notice of, and to vote at, the Annual Meeting of the Company to be held March 24, 1976.

Counsel for the Company have advised that holders who convert their shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock will not recognize gain or loss for Federal income tax purposes upon receipt of shares of Common Stock. Cash received in lieu of fractional shares will, however, he taxed as consideration received from a sale of such fractional shares to the Company. Holders of shares of 5% Convertible Preference Stock who own no Common Stock and who surrender all such shares for redemption will recognize gain or loss for Federal income tax purposes. Holders (1) who surrender less than all such shares for redemption or (2) who own Common Stock and surrender shares for redemption are urged to consult tax advisors because the tax brestment of the consideration received in redemption is uncertain.

RCA Color TV Leaves J.W.T.

One of the more persistent rumors in advertising circles in recent years has been that RCA and J. Walter Thompson were parting company. Those rumors have constantly been discounted:

Now, without the rumors, there is a parting —at least a partial one. RCA Consumer Electronics, Indianapolis, is moving the assignment for its color television receivers out but the RCA corporate assignment and Banquet Food a wholly owned subsi-diary, will remain at the

The color TV account is believed to bill around $10 million. According to RCA, a replacement agency will be named "shortly."

A spokesman said that, although sales volume for the industry was down, RCA had increased its share of the market.

In his statement on the split, Jack K. Sauter, division vice president-marketing of Consumer Electronics, said, "The recent Colortak introductory campaign has been well received by both the trade and the public, indicating the capabilities of the Thompson organization. Nev-ertheless we felt the chang-ing competitive nature of the consumer electronics busi-ness required that we make a completely fresh start in gy for future RCA color television product lines."

Which is a nice but rather ong way of saying goodbye.

Thompson has been working for RCA for 18 years.
One agency man who had been close to the business said he was surprised that J.W.T. had held onto the receiver business as long as it had, since it was his belief that what kept the business in place was the relationship between Dan Seymour, chairman of the agency, and Rob-ert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA, Mr. Seymour retired in August 1974, Mr. Sarnoff resigned effective Dec. 31.

N. W. Ayer ABH International does the advertising for RCA's black-and-white television. It got the business from J.W.T. a year ago.

Young & Rubicam worked for the division on its Selectavision, a videotape player and recorder, which has been shelved. The division is still looking for an agency to handle its Videodisc.

Other agencies working for units of the RCA Corporation are Ted Bates & Company, the agency for the Hertz Corporation: Grey Advertising and Tatham-Laird & Kudner, which work for the RCA. Records division, and Gimbel Hammond Farrell, the agency for RCA Global Comm

New-Product Boom

If the new-product tabulation done by the Dancer Fitzgerald-Sample New Pro-duct News is correct, 75 was the hottest year for introductions since the news letter got started 12 years ago. It also is the first year that the number went over 1,000-to 1,023, as a matter of fact. That's up 10 percent from 931 in 1974.

Martin J. Friedman, the editor, notes a couple of trends that might not have been expected. Confections, breads, cakes and cookies were up despite the higher cost of sugar. And bad economy or no bad economy there was a "dramatic de-crease" in introductions of budget-food staples.

Worth Celebrating! 200 Years Of...

American Know-How

It's moved this country forward.

Given one of the youngest nations the highest standard of living.

Given Americans reason for higher expectations.

Given more people more things they need.

Helped them achieve the quality of life they feel entitled to.

No where more than in their homes.

The July 1976 issue of House & Garden will report on the impact American Know-How has had on the way we live in our homes today. It will celebrate America's unique inventive genius. The enterprise, ingenuity, technology and creativity that has brought us to this remarkable moment in human history. And how much more of it will be required to solve the problems we will be facing as we move into The Third Century.

The July 1976 issue of House & Garden will anticipate the new directions industry and home life in America will be going in, in the next several decades. How we will define and pursue the pursuit of happiness in the years to come. How we will cope with the quantum changes that are predictable in our society and our family life. How we will perceive our homes and maintain our individuality in the most advanced, mass production culture. The "know-how" consumers will require to sort out their options... to choose and use the infinite number of products and services industry will be moving into the American marketplace in the new century.

All of this will be discussed by some of the best minds in America today. The movers. The doers. The planners. The scientists. The futurists. The humanists. They will all be speaking out in the issue of House & Garden celebrating American Know-How. Historic dateline, July 1976.

An issue that could only July 1976 happen once in 200 years.

It's right on time.

it's net that different.

By ALAN S. OSER

Three years ago the Leviton Manufacturing Company moved its headquarters into a group of low white buildings on Little Neck Parkway Queens, just inside the Nassau County line.

The Hazeltine Corporation, a: maker of aircraft components, had moved out only a few months before, consolidating its operations in Suf-folk County. For months the 180,000 square feet of office and manufacturing or ware-housing space in Little Neck remained vacant.

It is a community of pleasant, largely single-family homes, which the Hezeltine plant, built about 1941, antedated. The homeowners were not happy when they heard that Bohack's had taken an option to buy the facilities for a food-distribution facility, and their hostility evidently succeeded in blocking that venture.

In any event, Leviton finally bought the property for about $4.5 million. It was love at first sight, Harold Leviton, the president, said the other day. "The beauty is that this place is 20 minutes from Kennedy and 20 minutes from LaGuardia, and you aren't bucking the traffic either way."

Leviton is a New York City company, born and bred. It makes 25,000 kinds of electric wiring devices, sold both to consumers and to manufacturers of other products. It is also one of the city's largest manufacturing companies, with 1,800 people working at its manufacturing facilities in Brooklyn. It is a privately owned company, and closed-mouthed about its sales and earnings. But its growth pattern since Isidor Leviton founded the company in 1906 as a supplier of gas mantles to utility companies is almost a case study of the bonds between a busi-ness and its environment.

Leviton started in business on the Bowery and moved to Wythe Avenue in Williamsburg in 1916 and to Greenpoint three years later. It had 30,000 square feet in a two-story building then. Now it has grown into eight buildings with 500,000 square feet of space, occupying two square blocks on Greenpoint Avenue at Newel Street. The company built three of the buildings.

"For 10 years we talked about moving the executive offices," Mr. Leviton said. They were taking up 50,000 square feet in Greenpoint and the space was needed for manufacturing expansion there. But there was no intention of moving the manu-facturing operation itself. About 40 percent of the em-ployees live in walking distance, and there was no in-tention of risking a major loss of production employees.

In critical ways, Leviton is unlike the Rhinegold brewery, another major Brooklyn employer, and one that is talking about moving its operations to New Jersey. about moving its leviton's primary market is not in the city; nor is it competing with major naproducers operating across the river.

Leviton's expansion was not in Brooklyn alone. It has opened manufacturing plants in Rhode Island and North Carolina also. In Little Neck, it had to do a major hindsight we know it would have been cheaper to build new," said Mr. Leviton, "but we couldn't have got this location") but it also has plenty of extra space. A total of 90,000 square feet is used for storage. The company has declined requests that it rent out some of that space. The electrical wiring industry itself grew up in Bridgeport, Conn., where some of the better known names were Bryant Electric, a division of the Westinghouse, Corporation and Harvey Hubbel.

The consumer products are such choice items as plugs, sockets, switches, wallplates, adapters and fuses. The industrial products are more esoteric.

The Boston psychiatrist went to the San Mateo County jail this morning, and Miss Hearst came from her cell without incident for the interview. They talked through the morning and into the afternoon, said Lient Roger Goad, a jail official.

It also showed that a hearing would be set on a motion to file polygraph test results. That motion was placed under seal. Finally, the docket showed filed by the Manhattan District Attorney's office.

DANCE IN AMERICA

Rudolf Nureyev applauds "Dance in America" as the first major television series devoted entirely to his art. You'll applaud it for the vast range of exciting dance performances it allows you to see.

Produced by WNET/13 New York and supported in part by a grant from Exxon, "Dance in America" brings to public television unique examples of dance—both classical and modern—which best characterize America's distinctive choreographic styles and visions. And it gives audiences across the country the rare opportunity to see what our finest dance companies are doing.

Tonight, "Dance in America"

premieres with the celebrated City Center Joffrey Ballet, in a program of five dances, including "Trinity," by Gerald Arpino and scenes from "Green Table," a work by Kurt Jooss. Following programs will include exciting performances by Twyla Tharp & Dancers and the Martha Graham Dance Company.

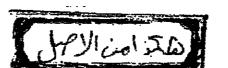

"Great Performances" series on PBS television include: Jennie; Theater in America; Music in America; and Fine M Specials. In addition, Exxon also helps possible the PBS science series NOVA and the Exxon/New York Philharmonic Radio Broadcasts.

Tonight at 9:00 PM the City Center Joffrey Ballet on WNET, Channel 13.

Dance in America is made possible by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and Exxon Corporation.

Drip' with

Ing of Phlega

In Minutes

The showcase is quite attractive but, before getting trapped in rhetoric about about dance on television is that there are no hard and fast production rules. What dance's finally coming of age on TV, let us pause briefly for some perspective.

The one hard and fast rule been disappointing. An obviously penny-budget record-ing of Twyla Tharp on CBS's "Camera Three" successfully captures the choreographer's wit and whimsy. A straight-on filming of a Balanchine duet in a simple rehearsal studio is marvelous.

In fact, dance has had a surprisingly large amount of exposure on television. Snide comments can be tossed at the old "Ed Sullivan Show" for including dance excerpts among the animal acts, but at least one appearance by Mr. Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn was spectacularly successful and probably did more for dance at the box office than a year's worth of special seminars.

While I personally prefer to have my TV dance in the form of complete and unedited works, the sampling route taken by this "Dance in America" premiere has its roots in at least two very lavish productions. 1973's "American Ballet Theater: A Closeup in Time," directed by Jerome Schnur, and 1974's "Alvin Ailey: Visions and Memories," directed by Stan Lathan. As it happens, Mr. Schnur is also listed as coordinating series producer for "Dance in America" and the Joffrey portrait is remarkably similar to his earlier work. The Joffrey image remains young and energetic. The repertory is almost recklessly varied, ranging from works by Mr. Joffrey and Gerald Arpino, the resident choreographer, to new and old contributions by Leonide Mas-sine, Kurt Jooss, Frederick Ashton, Jerome Robbins and Twyla Tharp, among others. Perhaps because of this variety, the company, for its debut hour on national television, has chosen to offer a sampler that occassionally threatens to become merely an extended commercial.

The program opens with a brief, but sufficient, glimpse of Mr. Arpino's ma-cho "Olympics," which celebrates athletic skills. The focus then moves between do-cumentary and dance production, between shots of the dancers in exercise classes and rehearsals, and scenes from several ballets. Mr. Massine is present to discuss "Parade," his 1917 "cubist" creation that had sets and costumes by Picasso, music by Satie and a ?book" by Cocteau Mr. Jooss discusses his "The Green Table." calling it "not a ballet, but a dance of death, a sort of ceremony.' Mr. Joffrey shows a snippet from the original film made for "Astarte" with Trinette Singleton and the late Maximiian Zomosa.

Gary Chryst, performing the solo Dance of the Chinese ror from. Francesca Corkle, Paul Sutherland and Jan Hanniford are the leading romantics in scenes from Mr. Joffrey's Remembrances." Predictab ly, the "The Green Table" proves visually powerful for TV, but Christian Holder's harrowing portrayal of Death is hampered by a stage floor tsat refuses to furnish the foot-pounding thumps required for full forcefulness.

The one work presented whole is "Trinity," an Arpino happening that cleverly re-flects the "love child" mystique of the 1960's and that, also cieverly, serves as a company showcase at its most youthful and most energetic. In an uncluttered, large space, the dancers are set into perpetual motion and intense exaltation. Rigid and ecstatic limbs are gradually worn down into a tableau of vigil candles. However superficial, the work is vivacious and appealing.

"Dance in America" has already stumbled on major problems. Budgets have been exceeded, outrageously according to rumor, reasonably according to official state-ments. Some staff members ere reportedly disgruntled, feeling that a rambling "hit or miss" procedure has been adopted for the series. The Joffrey beginning, while respectable, is not outstanding. Coming up in future months: Twyla Tharp, Martha Gra-ham. The direction of the series is still to be deter-mined.

TY TRADE JOURNAL CRITICAL OF FORD

Assails Him After Asking for Cable-Band Comment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—A leading television trade journal asked President Ford to make a statement for one of its special editions and then wrote an editorial criticizing the President after the White House refused to delete an indirect reference to the promise of cable television, according to several Government officials.

The journal is Broadcasting, a Washington-based publication that calls itself "the newsweekly of broadcasting and allied arts."

The argument appeared to reflect, at least in part, the increasing worry of the three major television networks and over-the-air broadcasters about White House consideration of legislation aimed at reducing the restrictions on cable and pay-cable television operators.

the restrictions on cable and pay-cable television operators. Several Government officials, said that after receiving the President's message, Sol Taishoff, founder of Broadcasting, protested to White House executives, including Eliska A. Hasek, director of Presidential messages; Richard D. Parsons, general counsel to the Domestic Council, and John M. Eger, acting director of the Office of Telecommunications Policy.

Although at least one minor change was made in President Ford's statement, officials involved in the negotiations insisted that the message remained essentially intact.

After praising the contributions of the broadcasting industry, the President said: "Technelogical advances promise to expand our ability to communicate with each other still further. They promise, and in some cases already do, increase access to, and choices for, information and entertainment services and invite our direct participation in the use of media."

Mr. Taishoff confirmed in an interview that the statement from President Ford "was not what we had hoped for" and that he had requested changes.

Mr. Taishoff denied reports that he had threatened to write

Mr. Taishoff denied reports that he had threatened to write a hostile letter if the requested changes were not made by the White House. The refusal of the White House to make major changes and the critical editorial on the President had "nothing to do with each other," he said.

The editorial said that the words that White House speech writers had "put in the President's mouth do a disservice to Mr. Ford. The President seeks broadcast exposure. He wants to get to the electorate first and fast and, in his own words, before the columnists and pundits process his utterances."

Public TV to Get Lear Projects

Norman Lear, who has produced a string of hits on network television and appears to have another success in the syndication field with "Mary Hartman," now has begun an association with public television.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting announced yesterday that Mr. Lear had agreed to develop one or more projects for noncommercial television, which might lead to a program series that he would produce.

Mr. Lear said that the projects would "deal with the American scene and draw from American literary material" but indicated that he could not be more specific until negotiations for rights were completed.

Sources at the corporation said that Mr. Lear's aim was to serialize a novel or body of stories by a well-known contemporary author. He is said to have several in mind, and although Mr. Lear's specialty is comedy, the public television series would be of a serious sature, the sources noted.

Expressing enthusiasm for the opportunity to produce "quality material" for public television, Mr. Lear said, "I feel I owe this to the medium and would like to be of some service to the audiences that public television serves."

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting regularly engages in the development of new programs for noncommercial television and, when it approves a project, provides the funding for the production of a pilot episode.

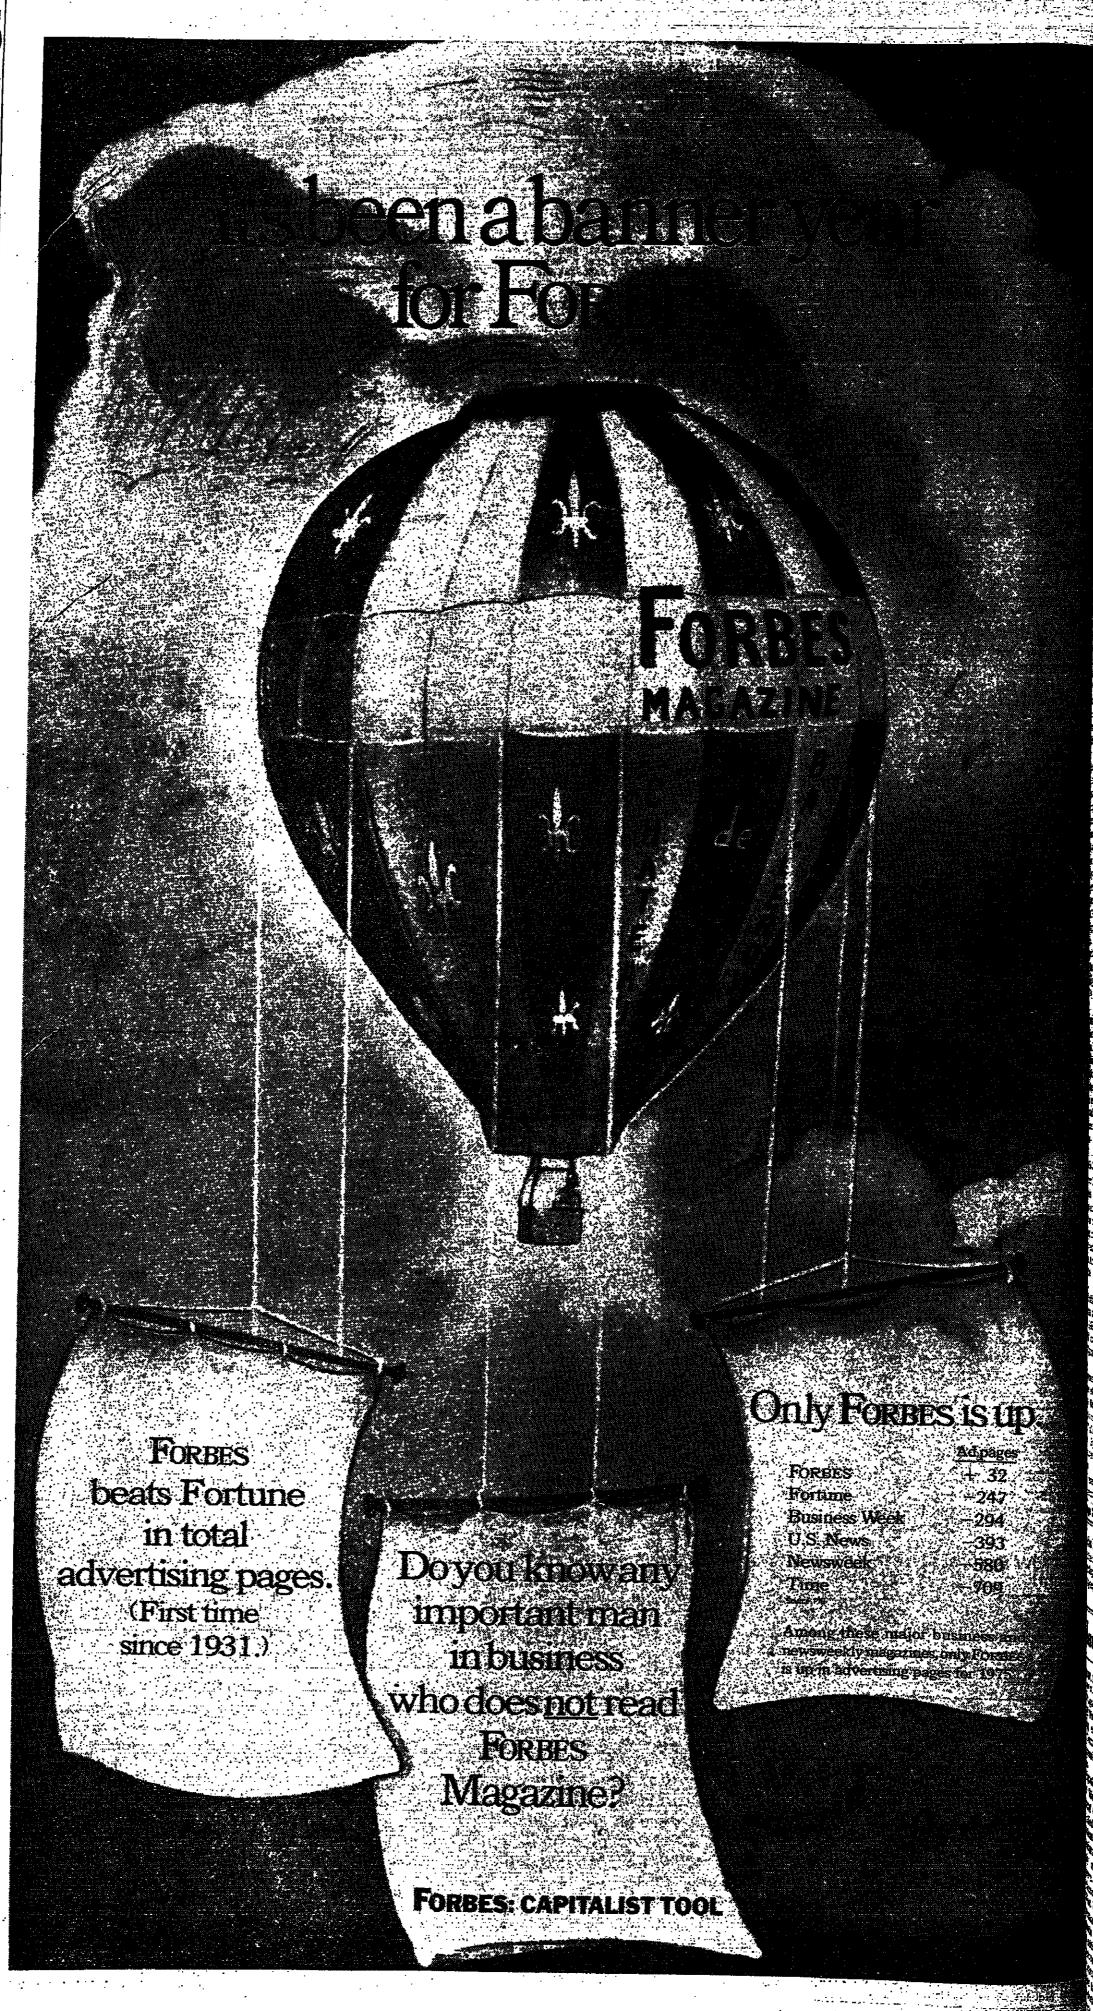

NBC Plans Series

On Life's Movies'

NBC wift present next season a three-hour version of "Life Goes to the Movies," the nonfiction book published last year as a pictorial history of Hollywood motion pictures as they were covered by Life magazine from 1936 to 1972.

Jack Haley Jr., who produced the M-G-M retrospective feature "That's Entertainment," will be executive producer of "Life Goes to the Movies," which is to be a co-production of 'Time-Life Television and 20th Century-Fox TV. The script will be prepared by Richard Schickel, film reviewer for Time who was film critic for Life from 1965 to 1972. Mr. Schickel will also serve as co-producer with Mel Stuart, who will double as director.
